REDS' RETREAT TURNED INTO ROUT

Transfer Of Troops, Subject To Truman Check On Other Nations' Contributions, Urged

Senate Committee Chiefs Reveal Terms Of Proposed Substitute For Wherry Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Sen. Connally (D-Tex) and Russell (D-Ga) proposed tonight the Senate approve additional ground troops for Europe subject to presidential check on other nations' contributions.

At the same time, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), who found this proposal unsatisfactory, announced he is drafting an amendment to delay troop transfer until other nations guarantee to fill their defense quotas.

Connally and Russell, who head the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees, respectively, made public the terms of a resolution they will seek to substitute for one proposed by Sen. Wherry (R-Neb).

Wherry has sought to bar the dispatch of any troops to augment the North Atlantic defense force until Congress passes on the policy involved.

Committee OK Expected

Adoption by the combined committees of the Connally-Russell resolution without substantial changes is expected late this week.

In their proposal, the two senators moved to put the Senate on record as saying "the threat to the security of the United States and our North Atlantic Treaty partners makes it necessary for the United States to station abroad such units of our armed forces as may be necessary and appropriate to contribute our fair share of the forces needed for the joint defense of the North Atlantic area."

The resolution would record the Senate as saying "the President should make certain that our North Atlantic Treaty partners are making contributions to the joint defense of Western Europe commensurate with their ability, geographic position and general economic condition."

The President would be asked to consult with the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees of both houses and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower before ordering troops abroad.

Sen. Taft To Testify

He also would be requested to report to Congress every six months on the implementation of the North Atlantic Treaty. The resolution also would approve Eisenhower's appointment as supreme commander in Europe.

Taft, who will testify tomorrow before the two committees, told reporters he has about given up the idea of seeking any percentage or numerical limitation on the number of troops to be sent to Europe.

Testimony by the Ohio Senator and Sen. Wherry, the Republican floor leader, will precede an appearance Tuesday by former President Herbert Hoover.

Reorganization Of VA Proposed; Red Tape Cited

One Contract Signed, Initialed 1,500 Times

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Robert L. Johnson, national chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report, urged today "early and sweeping reorganization of the Veterans Administration from top to bottom."

Johnson, president of Temple University, Philadelphia, spoke out in connection with what he called a "strait-laced new example of VA red tape"—a reported requirement that one government contract with an institution for GI training had to be signed or initialed 1,500 times—900 times by one person.

Educator Complains

Johnson said he referred to a letter sent by Alvin C. Eurich, president of the University of the State of New York, to Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr.

Eurich complained that on contracts covering only six of the university's 33 institutions, signatures or initials were required in more than a total of 2,200 places.

"On one contract alone, namely V3007V—at the Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences at Buffalo — a total of over 1,500 signatures or initials of the president of the university, secretary to the board of trustees, and director of the institute were required," Eurich's letter said.

"By any reasonable and legal standard this is utterly absurd."

"Most Unusual" Cases

"There is no reason whatsoever why every change in a basic document which is appended to a contract, such as a college catalogue, should be initialed," he added.

A. H. Monk, director of VA training facilities service, said he has by letter assured Eurich that the cases cited were "most unusual."

Monk added that without implying any criticism of its officials, VA agrees any system requiring such excessive duplication of signatures needs looking into. He said VA will try to find more simplified procedures for such cases.

Dulles Optimistic On Return To D.C.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — John Foster Dulles returned from almost five weeks of Far Eastern conferences today expressing confidence "that the way has been paved for the reinforcement of peace, order and justice by positive and cooperative action in the Pacific island area."

This was taken as an optimistic report by Dulles on prospects for a possible Pacific pact, similar to the Atlantic pact, uniting Pacific nations against Communist aggression.

Secretary of State Acheson has said a Pacific pact is under discussion. Dulles, President Truman's special envoy on the trip, told reporters "we are in shape to go ahead promptly" with the drafting of a Japanese peace treaty.

Dulles said he would report quickly to President Truman and State Department officials.

Orla Hutt, Dewey's Father-In-Law, Dies

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25 (AP)—Orla T. Hutt, 75, father-in-law of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, died today at the Governor's executive mansion following a heart attack.

Hutt was the father of Mrs. Dewey, the former Frances Eileen Hutt of Sapulpa, Okla., where her mother and father lived.

The Hutts had been visiting the Deweys since the Christmas holidays.

A spokesman for the Governor said Hutt for the past several years has been suffering from an asthmatic condition and hardening of the arteries.

Quadruplets Born In Baltimore

Quadruplets born to the wife of a Baltimore, Md., steel worker in Baltimore Saturday were reported doing fine yesterday. The quads, two boys (at right) and two girls are shown being held by Nurses Margarette Hillgren (left) and Laverne Resch at the Maryland General Hospital. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pappas. Mrs. Pappas saw her quads for the first time yesterday. Three of the babies weigh more than four pounds and one boy tipped the nursery scales at a healty five pounds, five ounces.

USSR, Saying West Arming To Teeth, Indicates She Has Only 2,500,000 In Uniform

MOSCOW, Feb. 25 (AP) — Soviet Russia indicated today that if the Western Powers want to discuss who has the most guns she is more than ready to produce figures that it is they who are arming to the teeth.

From a long Russian note to Britain repeatedly accusing the British government of "slander," but expressing readiness to negotiate outstanding differences, observers picked out as the most important item the statement that the forces of the United States, Britain and France total more than 5,000,000 men and that Soviet forces are less than half that size.

Figures Don't Dovetail

This indication that Russia counts only about 2,500,000 men in her navy, air force and army was the nearest in several years that she has come to offering any figures.

It was noted here that this is far below figures on the Soviet army alone that have been published in the United States and the western world in general.

(The Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Feb. 14 published a report estimating the Russian army at 4,000,000 men in 175 divisions, and said her European satellites had 1,000,000 more, against a total of 4,500,000 for all 12 Atlantic pact nations. The report did not mention Communist China's strength, generally estimated at 3,000,000 or more men, or North Korea. The report did not include millions of Russian reservists with World War II experience.)

Conference Ammunition?

Russia said she had demobilized 33 age classes since the war, cutting her armed forces to their numerical strength before the beginning of the conflict in 1939. On the other hand, she declared, Britain, the United States and France have "several times" the number they had under arms in 1939.

From this, observers concluded that if a four-power council of foreign ministers is held to discuss the "existing level of armaments" in Europe as a cause of world tension, as suggested by the West, Russia will come armed with figures to uphold her point that it is the three Western Powers who are preparing for aggression.

Thief Rode High But Didn't Know It

DETROIT, Feb. 25. (AP)—A car thief didn't know it, but he was riding high—on $117,000 worth of American Express money orders.

The orders, convertible into cash, were stored in the trunk of a car stolen from Harvey Daniels, an American Express Company employe.

A nationwide alarm was sent out after the car theft was reported.

But the car was found today on a suburban parking lot, with the trunk unopened and the orders untouched.

DeGaulle Wants Yanks In Europe

BOURGES, France, Feb. 25 (AP) — Gen. Charles DeGaulle warned today that American refusal to send more troops to Europe would "condemn Europe to invasion."

Speaking to about 5,000 persons here on the 35th anniversary of the historic Battle of Verdun, DeGaulle said commitment of U. S. air and sea forces alone would not be sufficient to defend Western Europe against a Russian attack.

"Before the Soviets," he added, "the solidarity of the new and the old world is the rule of health for both. I would ask the Americans to have no illusions. If Europe is lost, what remains in Asia would meet the same fate. Africa would be untenable."

"Then," he asked, "what would become of the United States, alone against a vast array of hostile forces?"

DeGaulle, the leader of Free French forces in World War Two and political head of the powerful Rally of the French People (RPF), said that "in the camp of the free, two obstacles must be conquered—America's remoteness and the weakness of the French regime."

$1.6 Billions In Refunds

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Commissioner of Internal Revenue George J. Schoeneman said today his office expects this year to turn back to some 29,000,000 persons a total of nearly $1,600,000,000 in income tax refunds by June 15.

Head Of Di Giorgio Fruit Empire Dies

DI GIORGIO, Calif., Feb. 24 (AP)—Joseph Di Giorgio, 76, head of the agricultural empire bearing his name, died at his home here today.

Di Giorgio, who came to the United States from Sicily about 60 years ago, became one of the world's leading growers and shippers of fruits and, in recent years, vegetables.

His scattered Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. farms cover more than 20,000 acres, mostly in California and Florida. Principal farms include those at Arvin, Delano and Marysville, Calif.

Di Giorgio died of a heart attack.

Marshall Ailing

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall was unable to address a Red Cross gathering tonight because of a slight cold which had kept him from his office for a couple of days.

Cattleman, Trainman Shoot Each Other To Death In Duel

MINEOLA, Tex., Feb. 25 (AP) — A cattle dealer and a railroad conductor met in a hotel cafe and — standing only 10 feet apart—shot each other to death in a wild duel early today.

The dying cattleman, his six-shooter empty, crawled to the conductor, already dead, and slashed him with a long-bladed pocket knife.

The fight occurred at 3 a. m. with only a waitress, Mrs. Kate Womack, to see it.

Chief of Police Bill Knippol said the men had been enemies for some time but "I don't know just what the cause of the trouble was."

Knippol said Mrs. Womack told this story:

Rufus Browning, 55, the cattle dealer, went into the cafe for a cup of coffee. A few minutes later, Joe Henderson, 45, entered.

"Keep your hands right where they're at," said Henderson. "I'm going to kill you."

"I'm just going to drink my coffee," Browning said.

While he drank, Henderson cursed him.

Browning drained his cup and started backing toward the door.

Henderson took a 9 mm German pistol from behind his back and started shooting.

Browning whipped out a .38 caliber revolver and shot back.

Both men emptied their pistols. But Browning was hit only once, in the chest. Henderson was hit in the heart and in the stomach.

Czech President Reveals Titoist Plot Uncovered

Blames Missing Clementis, Others

PRAGUE, Feb. 25 (AP)—President Klement Gottwald declared publicly today that the Communist Party has found within its ranks a five-year-old plot aimed at lining up Czechoslovakia with the West. He said it was engineered by the missing Vlado Clementis and others.

Gottwald assailed Clementis and the others as "traitors and conspirators." His statements bolstered belief that Clementis, former foreign minister under Gottwald, is under arrest. Previous reports has said that Clementis, who has not been seen since late in January, had fled to Yugoslavia or a haven in the west. But there has been no confirmation of his arrival.

Won't Be Second Yugoslavia

Gottwald said in a speech delivered Thursday to the Communist Central Committee and published today by the official party newspaper Rude Pravo:

"Czechoslovakia will not be a second Yugoslavia."

This was a reference to the ousting of Premier Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia from the group of Communist nations led by Russia. The Cominform did this in June, 1948, accusing Tito of enmity toward the Soviet Union and deviation from the true Marxist-Lenin line.

Some diplomats here have long suspected that "Titoism," the name given to Communist opposition to Kremlin dictation, has existed on a high level in the Czechoslovak Communist Party.

"Large Scale Conspiracy"

Gottwald said Clementis and the others had carried on a "large scale conspiracy" and acknowledged that "there was not enough vigilance inside the party." He urged doubting members:

"Believe in the party, comrade x x x in the end every one of these vagabonds is caught. Every one is caught and deserved punishment given."

Others named by Gottwald were Mrs. Marie Svermova, the party's former second deputy secretary-general, and Otto Sling, former political secretary for the Brno region. Mrs. Svermova, widow of the Communist war hero, Van Sverma, and Sling, have been removed from their party jobs and are reliably reported under arrest. Both were members of parliament and active in party organization work.

Five Iowans Die In Plane Crash

MACY, Neb., Feb. 25 (INS)—The bodies of five Iowans were recovered tonight from the wreckage of a twin-engined airplane that crashed in a rainsoaked cornfield on the Omaha Indian Reservation near Macy, Neb.

Bernard Case, operator of a farm near the crash scene, said authorities borrowed a team and wagon from him to haul the bodies out of the muddy field.

The victims were identified as Howard Campbell of the Sioux City, Ia., Flying Service, pilot; Roger Clark, Darrell Mousel and Bud Kisting, Army enlistees, and Marvin Engelking, a civilian pilot. The latter four were all from Moville, Ia.

Richard Wblf, manager of the Sioux City airport, said the plane had been chartered by Engelking for a flight from Columbia, Mo., to Sioux City.

The wreckage was spotted from the air shortly before dark tonight by two pilots from Sioux City who braved foggy, rainy skies to search for the plane which was due into Sioux City at 8:30 p. m. yesterday.

Czech Refugees Increase

Soldier Held In Fatal Beating Of His Wife

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Master Sgt. Stanley Szary, 35, was held by police today after his badly-beaten wife was found dead in bed.

Police said Szary, stationed at Bolling Air Force Base since 1946, walked into a police station, said he had an argument with his wife, Wilma, last night after he had been drinking, and couldn't wake her up this morning.

The police went to their home and found her dead in bed. Still asleep were their three sons—Stanley, Jr., 4, William 2, and Nicholas, three months.

Tydings London-Bound

NEW YORK, Feb. 25. (AP)—Former Maryland Sen. Millard E. Tydings, a passenger aboard a London-bound plane which was forced back last night by pressurization trouble, took off again again today for London.

Johnston Seen Approving 10% Wage Formula

Some Concessions To Labor Are Made

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Eric Johnston probably will sign into effect the 10 per cent "catch-up" wage formula tomorrow or Tuesday "without very extensive changes," government officials said today. It would replace the Jan. 25 general wage freeze.

The Economic Stabilization Agency chief was reported "well along" toward agreement with labor on its demands for revisions of the pay pattern.

But the rift on the Wage Stabilization Board, whose three labor members quit in protest over the formula, remained unhealed. Johnston, it was indicated, has decided to go ahead with the order and leave this split for later treatment.

Some Concessions To Labor

Some concessions to labor's demands for a more liberal pay policy are being made, officials said privately. But they emphasized the changes "will not be great."

This made it seem likely that Johnston will approve a formula permitting pay boosts beyond 10 per cent, up to next June 30, if such changes were written into wage contracts prior to Jan. 25, date of the present wage freeze.

This would permit escalator clauses—such as "cost of living increases" and "annual wage improvement clauses"—in union contracts to take effect up until midyear, when the wage formula is scheduled for revision.

The original formula, as it reached Johnston from the wage board ten days ago, would permit such automatic boosts only if they did not bring the total increase beyond 10 per cent since Jan. 15, 1950.

IUE Threatens Strike

That limitation brought a strike threat yesterday by the CIO International Electrical Workers Union. It would cost IUE's 65,000 members in General Electric Corp. about one-third of a scheduled nine-cent "escalator" increase after March 15. CIO strikes in the auto industry also were feared.

There was no sign that the government has formed a plan to patch up the split wage board. When the three public and three industry members voted for the 10 per cent formula, the three labor members resigned. They had demanded 12 per cent.

On the other hand, the three industry members yesterday issued a statement protesting what they understand to be Johnston's plan for liberalizing the formula and—as they argue—heightening its inflationary effect.

Sen. Fulbright Says RFC 'Weak'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is "so weak, so eager to please" it would jump at almost any suggestion that it make a government loan.

And Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) urged that White House Aide Donald Dawson be called to answer questions by a Senate Banking subcommittee investigating the RFC. Capehart wants to know about President Truman's study of congressmen's correspondence with the RFC on loans.

The Banking subcommittee — Fulbright is its chairman — issued a report recently. It said three RFC directors had allowed themselves to be influenced on granting loans.

The report said that Dawson, who is Mr. Truman's aide, appeared to be one of those who exerted undue influence.

Mr. Truman called the report asinine.

Sing Sing Prison Escapee Nabbed In New York City

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. 25 (AP) — Sing Sing Prison had its second escape in nine years today, but the armed prisoner was captured without a fight later in New York City.

George H. Brooks, 21, a trusty, walked away from the residence of Warden Wilfred Denno outside the prison walls shortly before 2 p. m. (EST).

Later it was discovered that he had used an axe to break into a cabinet in the warden's home and steal two revolvers, and had held the warden's housekeeper at gunpoint while he stole clothing belonging to the warden's son.

Less than seven hours later he was nabbed by two New York City detectives on a street in Astoria, Queens, not far from his home. Though still carrying the two revolvers, he made no attempt to use them during his capture.

Ridgeway Holds Tight Check Rein On Eighth Army

Probably Could Reach 38th Parallel In Day

KOREAN FRONT, Feb. 25 (AP)—The U. S. Eighth Army probably could break loose and move up to the 38th parallel in 24 hours any day it chose to do so.

Allied military authorities believe armored columns could speed to the parallel with little or no opposition, bypassing groups of the enemy and avoiding strongly-held towns.

But Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway is holding a tight check rein on the army he commands. In the present tactical situation, it is not likely he will switch to the unrestrained, all-out tactics made famous by the late Gen. Patton in Europe.

Instead, he has chosen a safer policy of "limited offensive." Armored and infantry columns fan out into a relatively small portion of enemy territory, sweeping it clear of hostile troops. Then the rest of the Eighth Army organized for defense in depth, moves up and occupies the area.

It is a principal of mop-up and follow-through.

"I am not interested in real estate—just in killing the enemy," Ridgway has said.

These aims are reminiscent of Francis Marion, the Carolina swamp fox, who dealt the British misery during the Revolutionary War. Like Ridgway, Marion raided enemy towns or camps, delivered hard blows and then retired.

Unlike Marion, however, Ridgway follows up his raiding blows with occupying troops when the time is ripe.

An Eighth Army officer grinned and said:

"Gen. Ridgway is more interested in real estate than he lets on. After all, real estate is what you fight on and hide behind."

For example, during a recent hot engagement, a sergeant called to his men:

"God gave you those ditches—use em!"

Ditches are real estate.

An Eighth Army spokesman said soberly:

Scientist Says Saucers Not Research Balloons

SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 25. (AP)—A former Air Force scientist today brushed aside the idea that flying saucers are just balloons and urged a full investigation of what he said may be experiments by "a potential enemy of the United States."

Dr. Anthony O. Mirarchi, who was employed by the Air Force as an air chemist in its geophysical laboratory, took issue with a recent magazine article written by Dr. Urner Liddel, Navy scientist. Liddel said what people have been seeing are plastic balloons sent into the upper air for radiation research.

Father Rescues Boy Swept Through Sewer Into River

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — A small boy fell into an open manhole today, was swept through a 100-foot drainpipe into the East River, and was rescued by his 51-year-old father — who said he couldn't swim.

The father, Martin Bygne, said he had been walking with the boy, Bruce, 6, and turned his head to say hello to someone.

When he turned back, the boy had disappeared.

Looking down the manhole, he saw Bruce being pulled into the pipe by the rush of water.

He climbed down, but was unable to catch the boy before the current carried him through the pipe and out into the river.

Byrne waded through the three feet of water in the drainpipe and plunged from its opening in a retaining wall into the river.

Somehow he reached the boy and towed him back to the opening.

He carried his son back through the pipe to the manhole, where bystanders pulled them out.

At Bellevue Hospital, where the father sat shivering in a blanket while the boy was treated for submersion, Byrne exclaimed:

"It was a miracle of God! I don't know how to swim."

Allied Troops Repulse Four Enemy Attacks

U. N. Drive Mired; Reds Escape Trap

TOKYO, Feb. 26. (AP)—The Allied commander in Central Korea said today his troops have forced retreating Red forces into a "virtual rout" and have killed or wounded 64,000 since Jan. 4.

The statement came from Lt. Gen. Edward M. Almond, Tenth Corps commander, as soupy mud on the thawing battleline and Red counterattacks slowed the U. N. drive northward.

A Red counterattack held back U. N. troops west of Hoensong Sunday, but elsewhere on the 60-mile central front thousands of Communists were fleeing to escape the Allies' "Operation Killer."

Almond and his field commanders conceded the North Korean Fifth Corps had pulled out to the north from the jaws of an envelopment intended to bottle up Reds in valleys southeast of Wonju.

The main Red counterattack west of Hoensong kept U. N. forces from reaching the highway between that road hub and Yongdu. Allied forces beat off three other counterblows.

Rain Aids Reds' Escape

Almond said his Tenth Corps ruined the effectiveness of two North Korean corps and knocked out most of two Chinese divisions at Chipyong before routing the North Korean Third and Fourth Corps north of Chechon.

Three days of rain and snow, he said, prevented his men from trapping Reds in the Hoengsong-Pyongsong-Pyongchang - Chechon triangle. Many escaped.

The estimated 14,000 escaping Reds were expected to make a stand north of Hoengsong. Air observers reported the enemy assembling in the vicinity of Hongchon in what appeared to be strong new defensive positions in depth.

Field dispatches said the Reds scented the growing Allied attack and began disengaging before tanks could roll up to snap shut the trap. Air support was hampered by overcast but planes struck widely at Red highway-borne supplies Sunday night and early today.

B-29s Fight Off Red Jets

Four B-29s fought off six to eight Red jet fighters Sunday over Suchon. An American gunner said he thought he hit one of the Russian-made MIG-15s with machine-gun fire. No B-29s was hit.

More enemy vehicles were spotted on North Korean roads Sunday night than on any other night in two weeks. It appeared the Chinese were preparing for a possible counter-offensive during the approaching bad weather when Allied planes may be grounded.

Chinese Reds hurled a column of grenade-tossing banzai-charging infantry at South Koreans attacking west of Hoengsong, a no-man's land 55 miles east of Seoul. Farther east, American forces repulsed three other Red attacks.

Forward American elements were operating completely out of ground contact with their rear echelons. Flooded streams and muddy roads, caused by rain and a pre-spring thaw, bogged down truck convoys, and supplies.

On a hurry-up call, the Far East Air Force's big C119 Fairchild "Flying Boxcar" transports airlifted 915 tons of supplies from Japan to Korea.

Of this amount, a record total of 340 tons of ammunition, food and medicine was dropped directly to front line units.

A fighting marine was assigned as temporary commander of the Eighth Army's Ninth Corps in place of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore who died Saturday following a helicopter crash.

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, commander of the First Marine Division, was given command of the corps, which includes two American divisions, a British Commonwealth brigade and South Korean troops.

Turkey Seeks U. S. Aid With Refugee Problem

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Turkey is negotiating for American help in dealing with the problem raised by the continuing influx of Turkish refugees expelled from Communist-run Bulgaria.

More than 100,000 have been thrust across the border in recent months, and Bulgaria has proclaimed intention of expelling ultimately the rest of the 800,000 or so Turkish population because of their lack of enthusiasm for Communism.

Diplomats said today the Turkish government has appealed to the U. S. for an increase in Marshall Plan aid to provide for prefabricated housing, cement, tools and other needs in coping with the knotty resettlement problem. Turkey also is seeking the services of American resettlement experts.

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Behind The Scenes In A Hospital

IT WAS 10 o'clock at night, and I was riding to Roosevelt Hospital in an ambulance, the first time I had ever come into one through the customers' entrance.

"You're all right, John," said Dr. Traeger.

"If I am," I asked hoarsely, "why the hell am I in an ambulance on the way to Roosevelt Hospital at this time of night?"

Although is was six years ago, that one has not yet been answered. They dumped me into the X-ray gallery, took many pictures of my insides in various poses, gave me the biggest shot of penicillin up to then tried on a patient in the joint, and lugged me upstairs to a private room. I heard the doctor say to my wife,

"He's got plenty of pneumonia."

The next morning I was purple and could just about breathe between spasms of coughing, when I looked toward the door and saw a lady in a nurse's costume, who somewhat resembled Madeleine Carroll only better looking, enter. Sick as I was, I did a double take, and was pretty sure I had died and gone to heaven.

"How did I get you? Where did you come from and what's your name?" I whispered.

"I was on call, and they sent me up here. My name's Mary Mohanco," she answered.

She told me later when I was better and walking around, the clerk in the office downstairs said there was an old guy up in Room 509 pretty near dead, and asked her if she wanted to take the case. She did and went to work on me, introducing me to a lot of hospital gadgets I had never seen before. It was the old Wheeler luck to get such a nurse and pneumonia just two weeks after penicillin had been released for civilian use.

Having a hospital bed bath was a new experience, and not an unpleasant one, but, as all veterans know, there comes a time in the plot when the lady in white hands you the wash cloth and says quietly,

"Now finish your bath." She usually leaves the room.

At first I was a little puzzled about this procedure, although I soon caught on. Miss Mohanco told me about a man patient she once had who was a freshman, too. She gave him the usual instructions and departed. In about five minutes, she returned and found him shampooing his hair. She also used to give me a bootleg shave, but put on the red light outside the door, meaning "don't disturb the patient," so the regular barber would not find out.

Toward the end of my stay it was fun, because I was permitted to roam the halls with my faithful friend, and once borrowed an interne's white coat and hung a stethoscope around my neck. A lady asked me to take her temperature and feel her pulse, discussing freely her symptoms. She was there for a nervous disorder, I found. If she had known about me, her condition would probably have deteriorated, but no one told her.

Naturally, being a reporter, I got in on all the gossip of the place, and there seemed to be plenty to talk about. I met a smiling Irish nurse about 50 who was the only one who could handle a certain very important political boss when he went on a bender. He would curse and try to get out of the hospital. She would swear just as hard and had a better punch, because she was sober. If he would try to scramble out of bed, she would say,

"Get back in there, you big Irish bum," and then let him have one she started from her heels.

When he was off the stuff, these two were fast friends.

The classic is the story about the Duke of Windsor when the Duchess stepped in to have her appendix removed, and he took an adjoining room to be near "the woman I love." As is well known, the bathrooms attached are working cubicles for utilitarian purposes and furnished on the theory the occupants are bedridden. (For those vigorous enough to get up, there is a walk down the hall.) Fastened to a long hose is a nozzle which is intended to clean utensils employed in caring for the sick.

The Duke arose the first morning to take his bath, and was puzzled by the fittings, but thought it was a novel American idea, so turned the water on and sprayed himself plentifully. It ran under the door out into his room and dribbled down the corridor before the flood could be investigated, and the royal gentleman told where the walking bath was located.

Sir William Osler, the celebrated English physician, is quoted as having said,

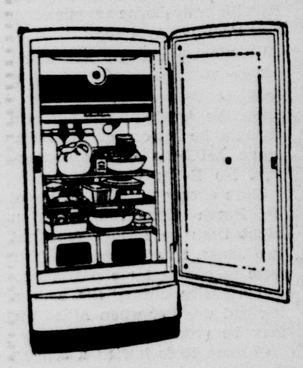

"Good nursing is more important than a good doctor."

I agree. That's why I am able to write this piece now.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

AN UNNATURAL FINESSE

USUALLY you will see a declarer, who is able to finesse in either direction against a missing queen, lead from his shorter holding toward the longer one. That is usually called a "natural" finesse. An "unnatural" finesse is one whereby the lead is from the longer holding toward the shorter, such as leading the jack from five cards headed by the K-J-10 toward the A-6. That is virtually obligatory for a No Trump game declarer if he can afford to lose the finesse to the defender who plays after the A-6, but not to the other one, especially if enough other tricks are available to him after the finesse.

South analyzed his problem clearly, after dummy's 10 held the first trick on the lead of the spade 6. He saw that the one real danger to his contract was letting East win a trick of any kind and then lead through his remaining K-J toward West's marked spade honors. He could well afford to let West win, however, as in that event a second spade lead would come from his left up to the guarded king.

Besides that, he counted up the number of his sure winners in other suits, finding three in hearts, two in clubs and the one already scored in spades. That made six, and by finessing diamonds toward West, he would be sure to get the needed three additional tricks in the suit, no matter who held the Q.

So to the second trick he led the diamond J and, as East played low, put on the 6. Now he laid down the diamond A, returned to dummy and laid down the diamond K, hoping it would find the Q and 9 divided. When that proved not to be the case, he merely thanked his lucky stars for having finessed as he did, then ran his other high cards to have exactly nine tricks. He threw the rest of the hand in, conceding four tricks to the defense.

Your manner at the table, not which fork you use, is what marks you as a real charmer!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

MORE IMPORTANT to possess than table manners is a manner at the table. Uninitiated youngsters going to their first formal are sometimes wary about an array of silver, but reference to a good etiquette book and just a little beforehand practice will quickly dispel any uneasiness over which fork to use.

A truly charming manner at the table cannot be acquired so easily, although I have seen many a slip of a lass grace a company dinner in the most polished fashion. When I see a sixteen-year old with such winning ways, I am almost certain that she has been accustomed to a prettily and correctly set table every day. Table poise and charm are the result of daily cultivation.

Faults Frequently Observed

An attractive table manner cannot be described by a set of rules. Detractions from it can be witnessed any day in restaurants. Here are just a few of those I note far too frequently. Tick them off and see how they tally with your observations:

1. Behaving as though a meal were a contest against time. The dinner hour especially should be a social event and a time for relaxation.

2. Eyes that rove and table-hop instead of concentrating on their dinner companion. It is inexcusable rudeness.

3. Yakity-yak, or dead silence. A gracious table manner includes the best of the art of conversation. The dinner hour is an excellent time for an exchange of ideas and events of the day.

4. Bringing troubles to the table instead of pleasures. This can only result in unhappiness and indigestion for all.

5. Arguing. Result: Loss of charm and the currying of ulcers.

More Thoughtless Offenders

6. Making a dressing table out of the dinner table.

7. Any kind of thoughtlessness—being too choosy over a table; too slow over selecting from a menu; loud and unreasonable in complaints; or so loud in conversation that others wish they could turn you off as easily as a blatting radio. And, of course, any rudeness to those who serve you.

Always be conscious of others' points of view, and you'll never need to worry about your manner!

Most famous Pierre Du Pont legend concerns the day he invited a honeymoon couple to view his priceless collection of Chinese art. Awaiting the arrival of the host, the young bride picked up a small vase to examine it more closely, then gasped with dismay as it slipped from her hands and shattered into a thousand pieces on the stone floor.

At this precise moment, Pierre Du Pont came pattering along. "Oh, Mr. Du Pont," wailed the bride, "I've smashed the little vase that stood in the little niche here." Mr. Du Pont looked at the niche indicated, gave the bride a reassuring pat on the back, announced, "Don't worry that pretty little head of yours; the vase was one of the least important in my collection"—and fainted dead away.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS).

AT THE Versailles Restaurant the other night John Wayne and his wife were having dinner with Herbert Yates, his boss, and a few other friends, when a fellow walked up to him, stuck out a bit of paper and said, "Autograph this, if you can write."

Wayne, a product of the University of Southern California and a somewhat rougher school which might be called John Ford U., smiled up at the stew and said sure. He signed his name.

"Look, a writing actor," the guy, a real card, called to his nearby table. Big laugh.

"You want me to sign it to anybody in particular," Wayne asked amiably. (He could have, of course, destroyed the tormentor with the back of his enormous hand.)

The fellow quieted down a bit and then said, "Yeah, as a matter of fact. My kid likes you."

"Gee, that's fine," Wayne said. "What's his name? Jimmy? Sure." And he put on a special little salutation to Jimmy.

"Thanks," Wayne said and handed the paper back to the man. "Give my best to Jimmy."

The man mumbled his thanks and disappeared.

None of the above comes under the head of earthquaking news. But it does tell a little about the trials and tribulations of great popular fame, and it does tell a little about Wayne—the new box office champion from Hollywood.

I tagged along with Wayne during the Republic star's short visit in New York (he's now in London) and, though I don't marvel too easily, marvelled at the manner of the 6-foot-4 unadulterated man.

Wayne has about as little ham in him as any actor who ever lived. He had no drum-beaters out in front of him as he moved from place to place like any average well-heeled tourist. He wanted no special tables, and when he couldn't get a couple of seats to "Guys and Dolls" he just shrugged and said, "What the hell, if there's no seats... no seats."

Wayne's iron but friendly kisser was seen last year by more Americans than, in all probability, had ever seen anybody's face of a similar stretch of time. His pictures played to an estimated 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 customers in this country alone, and his ancient ones filled TV screens with almost the consistency of Hopalong.

He holds one distinction that must be unique in Hollywood. He became the screen's leading attraction during a year in which he did not make a single picture.

On the day his memorable "Sands of Iwo Jima" (made in 1949) opened in San Francisco five of his old pictures began re-issue runs on the same street. His incomparable "Stagecoach," which he believes is the best thing he ever did, was a TV perennial.

Wayne's trip to the top was marked by the hard work you would expect of a face and a mind and a body like that. It all started one afternoon on the Fox lot, where he worked as a property man during vacations from the university. He was a tackle on the football squad and liked to practice his crouch and charge.

One day, while doing this, his feet were kicked from under him and he was knocked over backwards with a resounding wallop.

"Keep your eyes open, son," said the gruff gentleman who had dumped him. It was John Ford, one of the immortal directors, and every bit as rough and ready as anyone who worked for him. Ford took a liking to Wayne, included him on a trip to Annapolis to make a forgotten picture named "Salute" and gave him a small part.

They've had their ups and downs since, mainly ups like "Stagecoach," "The Long Voyage Home," "They Were Expendable," "Fort Apache," "She Wore A Yellow Ribbon," etc. And are inseparable friends.

Wayne's blunt attacks on Communism in and out of Hollywood, during his recent tenure as president of the Motion Picture Alliance are models of succinct phrasing and gutty approach. And it was a pleasure to watch him handle the crowds—some sincere, some abusive—who stormed him during his trip to the big town. Hollywood would have nothing to fear from Congress if it produced more gents like this one.

Board Considers Proposals For Streamlining Elections

Several proposals to streamline the system of conducting primary and general elections and registering new voters are under consideration by the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors and Board of County Commissioners.

At a meeting of the two bodies recently they explored various methods of eliminating some of the apparent defects in the current system.

Patrick J. King, clerk to the election supervisors for the past eight years, outlined some of the methods which could be used to modernize the program.

King suggests 12 new polling places, which would provide 90 places to vote in this county. Some of the present polling places have more than 1,000 voters on the poll books. Under the new plan, these larger precincts would be divided into two segments.

Instead of 1,000 or more persons voting at one polling place, they would be divided into alphabetical lists from A to J and from K to Z as is done in some of the precincts. Under this program there would be no polling place with more than 500 to 600 names.

Instead of paying poll workers on the present basis of overtime, they would be reimbursed at a flat rate of $22 for their time and effort. This is an average of $4 per day more than now received, even with overtime.

This would result in speeding up the counting of ballots and also would give the poll workers a little more money for their work.

Another modernization move would be a program of permanent registration.

Two persons would be employed at an annual salary of about $2,500 and they would sit at the Court House here to register any new eligible voters. On certain days they would visit various parts of the county to register new voters in those areas.

A card file system would be used to keep this permanent style registration. The saving by this method over a period of years would be extensive. It would cut out the present method of having each polling place manned by registrars on days just prior to primary and general elections and would also eliminate revision days. King estimates a saving to the county over a two-year period of $14,000.

These provisions are endorsed by members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, which has conferred with King and members of the Board of Election Supervisors.

The commissioners cite the following reasons for their approval.

It will save the county money.

Be convenient for new voters to register.

Speed up the tally of votes in both primary and general elections.

Treasury Vs. Federal Reserve

The Federal Reserve Board of Governors in insisting on its duty and its authority to control the whole volume of credit in the present emergency has run afoul of the Treasury's position on how much to pay for carrying the U. S. public debt. Last month Secretary Snyder announced his intention of maintaining the present low interest rates on government obligations—averaging 2-1/3 per cent on Treasury bonds.

Snyder expressed confidence that much of this year's maturing debt of $39 billion could be replaced with non-bank investors. Raising the average rate on outstanding Treasury obligations by half of one per cent would cost, he said, an additional $1½ billion in carrying charges. But to maintain the stability of government securities at the present low interest rates, the Federal Reserve system has had to become a purchaser of them in the open market at what thus becomes a guaranteed price.

Banks can achieve additional reserves on which to base new private loans by selling some of their holdings of government securities to the Federal Reserve system. The Treasury's "easy-money" policy, in the opinion of Marriner S. Eccles, Federal Reserve Board member and former chairman, makes the Federal Reserve system an "engine of inflation." Eccles argues, for one thing, that higher prices cost the government in its huge purchasing program more than it would have to pay out as a result of higher interest rates on the public debt.

The Federal Reserve system by tradition is supposed to be independent of the White House and of political pressures. Board members are appointed to 14-year terms by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and are removable only for cause. The late Sen. Glass, "father of the Federal Reserve system," once quoted President Wilson as declaring, "The very moment I should attempt to establish close relations with the Board, . . I would be accused of trying to bring political pressure to bear."

When President Truman, in 1948, failed to reappoint Eccles as chairman of the board, the move was widely interpreted as reducing the influence of the board chairman in the whole banking community. And Dr. G. L. Bach, in his study of the Federal Reserve system, has found the board, in general, subservient to the Treasury. "Federal Reserve policy," Dr. Bach writes, "has reflected keen awareness of the executive leadership of the President and the key role played by the Treasury in government financial affairs."

Congress set up the Federal Reserve system in 1913 to "furnish an elastic currency, to afford means of rediscounting commercial paper, to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States." The stock of the 12 Federal Reserve banks then created is owned by the member commercial banks, so that the Federal Reserve system is technically privately owned and privately supported. Operating expenses of the Reserve banks and of the Board are met by earnings which arise largely from interest on government securities and on funds advanced to member banks. After expenses and payment of a fixed six per cent dividend on stock, the Reserve banks pay into the Treasury approximately 90 per cent of net earnings.

The Banking Act of 1935 reaffirmed the independence of the system by removing from the board the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency, who theretofore had served as ex-officio members.

Developments of deeper concern to the American people have been following each other so rapidly, the general inclination now seems to be to follow Truman's lead and just assume Margaret can sing.

Fear Or Bravado?

The Western world is still confused by Dictator Stalin's latest "interview"—and this is not surprising. Some of his statements may be read this way or that.

War, for instance, is not inevitable "at the present time." But that was last week. The world must accept Russia's terms or the United Nations will collapse. But those terms refer to China and not to the Soviet.

The most insipid remark of all is to the effect that Russia cannot be rearming because it is spending so much money in other directions.

Perhaps it is a case of wishful thinking, but many persons get the impression that Stalin is talking slightly out of fear. Certainly he has reason to be concerned. Matters in the satellite states are not going so well as they were and there are hints of disaffection in the Soviet Union.

The campaign to drive a wedge into the Western states has obviously resulted in failure. Most of the free world's statesmen see through Russia's game and are determined to put an end to it.

It is perhaps further indication of a disturbed mind that Stalin himself has now entered the list of propagandists. He has, of course, spoken before, but for the most part he has left it to his aides to do the dirty work of attacking the free world.

That he feels the time has come for the master to take a hand may not be without significance.

Now that it has been revealed Armstrong County, South Dakota—population 52— has no federal employes, at least seven residents of the county can look forward to receipt of offers from Washington.

Glare Is Dangerous

Headlight glare remains one of the worst highway hazards, according to safety officials, who continue to warn drivers their own safety, as well as the safety of others, demands use of the ower beam when approaching opposing traffic on neighborhood streets or the open road.

Complaints of motorists in recent months indicate there is a growing carelessness on the part of vehicle operators in the matter of headlight use.

Blinding glare from upper beam lights assails drivers everywhere, making it impossible to see pedestrians in the streets or along highways and making it extremely difficult to keep to the road.

Refusal to change to the lower beam after an approaching driver has done so is an indication of unfitness to be at the wheel of a car. Every driver should understand the vital relationship between visibility and highway safety.

Most states require use of the lower beam when there is approaching traffic, but enforcement is difficult. The matter really is in the hands of the individual driver, who can contribute to the safety of night driving by showing consideration for his fellows.

Economists are looking forward to a national income of $300 billion. Or $50 billion in real money.

Food From Sawdust

AMERICAN FARMERS continue to produce surpluses but research workers have not ceased looking for new foods. The problem has assumed greater importance than in the past because undernourishment in certain parts of the world presents a challenge, or even a threat, to our way of life. The search for additional sources of food involves not only a study of agriculture, forestry, soil, fisheries, production, and processing but also research by veterinarians and the medical profession.

Favorite sources of study are the waste materials from various undertakings along this line is the attempt to convert wastes from sawmills and wood pulp mills and discarded portions of agricultural crops into digestive sugars, proteins, and fats. These products are useless at the present time and have little or no food value but it is estimated that a ton of sugar rich molasses could be made from a ton of waste wood. This molasses is palatable to cattle but not to humans because it is too bitter. Furthermore, it is possible to obtain a protein live stock feed high in vitamins by growing yeasts and molds on wood molasses. These yeasts compare favorably with baker's and brewer's yeast.

The oceans also are said to contain a wealth of food in addition to the commonly used fish; even in fresh water, great masses of tiny creatures which could be cultivated as nutriment live in abundance. In addition, there is a deep scattered layer at the bottom of the ocean still unexplored and unexploited, that may contain enough food to help the inhabitants of areas where there is not enough to eat. This thought is more than theoretical. In World War II echo sounding instruments discovered a layer of "something" between the surface and the bottom and it is likely that this consists of masses of living organisms with potential food value.

Research also aims to increase the existing food supply. New hybrid plants could boost the vital output of farmers everywhere, not only in the American corn and wheat belts but in Chinese rice paddies and tropical sugar cane plantations. Improving the land thru fertilization is efficacious and it may be possible to boost the fishing industry thru research along this line. Another problem that will offer handsome rewards is the elimination of pests, such as locusts and grasshoppers that kill our growing crops. By eliminating disease in cattle we not only conserve live stock but eliminate a source of disease transmission to humans.

The addition of antibiotics to animal feed is an excellent example of what strange things happen when a little ingenuity is used. Penicillin, aureomycin, terramycin, and chloromycetin suppress organisms that might retard the growth of animals. The antibiotics also may encourage the growth of more helpful germs that were held in abeyance by the harmful species. Most farm animals live in environments where organisms thrive and are in contact with them day after day. However, soil must not be underrated; in many areas it is high in vitamin B12, currently popular as the growth vitamin. When soil is fed to pigs, growth and health tend to improve. It has been said that there is as much of this vitamin in suburban New York soil as there is in milk.

DON'T BLAME TEETHING

Mrs. H. writes: Can teething cause convulsions in children?

REPLY

No. Teething is blamed unnecessarily for many childhood ailments, including convulsions. Teething can make the child irritable and interfere with sleep and digestion but beyond that there is no logical reason why it should cause other manifestations.

HERNIA AND HEART

C. W. writes: Does a hernia interfere with the heart action or retard the flow of blood to the heart?

REPLY

The more common type of hernias, such as inguinal, femoral, and umbilical, have no effect upon the circulation. On the other hand, a large diaphragmatic hernia could conceivably disturb heart action. Changes in the electrocardiogram, traceable to this form of hernia, have been demonstrated and now and then symptoms are difficult to differentiate from angina pectoris.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Government To Control Scarce Metals; This Column Will Answer G. I.s' Questions; Senators Have Affidavits On "Job-Selling" Scandal.

Says DREW PEARSON

Washington — Mobilization Boss Charles Wilson will assume drastic powers over aluminum, copper and steel, beginning the middle of June. He will put these strategic metals under a controlled material plan, which will give the government authority to regulate their use down to the last pound.

Wilson spelled out his plan behind closed doors to the Joint Congressional Committee on Defense Production.

"The controlled materials plan is one that will operate on scarce materials absolutely," the mobilization boss explained. "I mean, it will have the control of all the material in the particular line that is short."

However, Wilson added ruefully: "Once you start to control things, it is a terrific job. That is why I hate controls, and from the very bottom of my heart I hate controls."

The reason for this drastic control plan, Wilson said, was the dangerously short supply of aluminum, copper and steel in the face of the tremendous armament program.

He warned that the steel shortage will be the most critical, but that the copper and aluminum picture is not so gloomy. For example, he reported: "We will continue to have an aluminum shortage for this current year of maybe as much as 180,000 or 190,000 tons . . . but by 1953, when these American plants of ours come in and begin to produce, we will have a plusage of aluminum, not much, maybe 50,000 tons in 1953."

"Does that mean that, in 1953, aluminum will be in reasonably good supply for civilian use as well as military?" asked Utah's GOP Sen. Wallace Bennett.

"Yes sir," smiled Wilson.

G. I. Gripes

Letters pour in to this column every day from G. I.'s, exercising their time-honored American privilege to kick. It is impossible to investigate all their complaints, but from time to time, this column will publish the most serious G. I. gripes and try to give them a straight steer. Names will be withheld upon request.

A DRAFTEE, Ft. Story, Va.—"There are 500 of us at Ft. Story who haven't been home since we were drafted. Now we are supposed to be shipped overseas. We were promised ten days leave, but this has been cut to three days. This isn't even enough time to go home and tell our folks goodbye."

ANS.—Investigation reveals that several camps have cut furloughs in order to complete training schedules and still meet shipping schedules. However, this column protested to the Army which promised to send a directive to all camps, ordering at least a seven-day furlough for every G. I. before he is shipped overseas.

CAPT. ROGER C. WHITE JR., Somewhere in Korea—"I wish the people of the U. S. could see the horror of war as exhibited in Korea. Hundreds of men, women and children are dying daily from lack of food and the intense cold. Is there no way to aid them?"

ANS.—"CARE" is now rushing food and clothing to Korean refugees.

A SERGEANT, Camp Stoneman, Calif.—"Whatever happened to the much-publicized point system announced last fall, under which enlisted reservists with sufficient points would not be sent overseas?"

ANS. — The point system was hastily abandoned November 7, 1950, less than two weeks after it was adopted. An Army spokesman explained it was scrapped because of Chinese intervention in Korea. Reminded that the Chinese didn't intervene until late November, he consulted his superiors and came back with the story that the critical military situation had caused the plan to be dropped. However, it was pointed out that the military situation was more critical on October 28 when the point system was announced than on November 7 when it was dropped. The Army had no further alibis.

ELMER HENCY, SR., Oran, Mo. —"Can't anything be done to help my three boys in uniform? They sacrificed high civilian wages to serve Uncle Sam, but they have to pay income taxes even on their small Army incomes."

ANS. — Enlisted men in combat zones are exempt from paying income taxes. If they are stationed in noncombat areas, however, they must pay taxes the same as civilians. Meanwhile, several bills have been introduced in Congress to exempt all enlisted men from paying income taxes. The best thing you can do is write to the House Ways and Means Committee, urging tax relief for all G.I.'s.

A PARATROOPER, Ft. Campbell, Ky.—"We have been ordered to sign forms that we 'may not own, or maintain, or operate a motor vehicle that is not registered at Ft. Campbell.' I have a car in my name, but it is being driven by my wife at home. If this form is legal, then what is to stop the Army from telling me that I should sell my home or divorce my wife and send my children to an orphanage?"

ANS.—This form was issued in the hope of reducing accidents around Ft. Campbell. The only legal grounds for it is the authority of the Army to maintain safety at its installations. The Army cannot take away your automobile, and probably won't try.

"Job-Selling" Scandal

Here is the inside story on the Mississippi "job-selling" scandal. Mississippi's two senators have affidavits from 20 rural mail carriers, postmasters and contractors who say they were charged as high as $1,500 for jobs and favors. The senators' constituents claim to have been approached by representatives of the so-called Truman faction of the Democratic party.

Jobs were sold at the following prices: $1,500 for rural mail carrier, a position not requiring Senate confirmation; $300 to $400 for acting postmaster (this payment is small, since postmasters must be confirmed by the Senate); $300 for county director of price stabilization.

Contractors also paid $200 to be placed on a nonexistent eligible list for war contracts. A Columbus, Miss., contractor reported that he was warned his name would be put on a blacklist if he did not pay the fee.

NOTE—The Truman faction of the Democratic party in Mississippi is headed by Clarence Hood, acting national committeeman.

Battling Wilson

WASHINGTON

"THEY'RE ALL acting like pigs." These are the bitter words of a disgusted mobilization official who has watched with dismay the scramble for special privilege which is going on as mobilization gets under way. This vast collective insult was of course an exaggeration. But it is enough to suggest why mobilization chief Charles E. Wilson's much-publicized battle with organized labor is only a prelude to further battles with agriculture and business.

The significant thing about the row with labor is that all the issues ostensibly in dispute are essentially fake issues. Sensible labor leaders agree in private that the proposed 10 per cent wage rise limit—which is actually greater than the increase in the cost of living — is not really so outrageous as they make out in public.

They also privately agree that Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin has no real business running the whole manpower requirements of the nation, including such matters as military deferments and inductions; and moreover that Tobin himself is something less than a genius. As for the third ostensible issue, the appointment of a labor official on Wilson's staff, Wilson offered this concession long ago. He has now renewed the offer, in a notably conciliatory reply to the letter in which the labor leaders virtually called him a liar. So this can hardly be rated a real issue either.

Real Issues Deeper

The real issues go deeper. For one thing, labor feels that President Truman has not paid off for labor support in 1948. When they talk of Truman, the labor men sound rather like Lear—"How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child." There are other complications, like jealousy of John L. Lewis. But the basic motivation of the labor revolt is very simple. The labor men are convinced that business and agriculture have jostled into a favored position at the mobilization trough, and labor wants to get its share while the getting is good.

The fact is that business and the farmers have by and large been no more eager than labor to accept anything smacking of sacrifice, in the national interest. Wilson is perfectly aware of this, which is why his battle with labor is only a first round. The second round, this time with agriculture, has in fact already started within the Administration, and it will soon be fought out on the public stage of Congress.

The powerful farm organizations have taken the stand that the parity formula is sacrosanct, and that they will fight to the last ditch against any attempt to amend the mobilization law to permit control of any food prices below parity. This means, according to the estimates of Wilson's staff, that food prices will climb an average five per cent before they can be controlled. This in turn will reinforce demands for higher wages, to the point where the process of spiralling prices might get wholly out of hand. Wilson is determined that this shall not happen.

More Battles In Prospect

He therefore proposes to go to Congress very soon and demand authority to control certain food prices below parity. Inevitably, Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan is fighting this proposal. It is likely that President Truman will support Wilson in the end, and that Wilson will therefore soon be involved in another unholy row, this time with the farm organizations and the Congressional farm bloc.

As for business, Wilson and his chief aids, despite their reputation as conservatives, have been looking

Only Spiritual Awakening Can Prevent Another War

By ROGER W. BABSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25 — Only a spiritual world awakening can prevent another world war sometime. Wars appear to be one of God's ways of bringing people to their knees. There, however, is no need for another world war now.

Neither U. S. Nor Russia Ready

The basic reason why no world war is probable this year is that all nations are waiting to learn what atomic bombs can do to ground troops.

To answer this question is the reason for the Nevada atomic experiments of the past few weeks. The Korean war has shown that ordinary bombs, dropped from the air, has not succeeded in destroying ground troops. The infantry no longer marches in concentrated ranks as they used to do. Now they are so spread out that the individual soldiers are 50 or more feet apart.

For nine months of the year our bombers have been useful in destroying bridges and smashing supply lines. During the remaining three months, after the rivers froze, these bridges and highways were no longer necessary and the bombers were greatly handicapped. This explains why the Chinese armies awaited until the rivers froze up before they attacked. This further explains one reason why our military experts do not expect Russia to attempt overrunning Europe before October or November, if then. The other reason is that Russia wants to gather her much needed crops from Bulgaria, Rumania, Poland and Czechoslovakia before war begins. But the real reason Stalin has delayed an attack on Europe is his fear of what the new form of atomic bombs could do to masses of foot soldiers and tanks.

World Oil Situation

Irrespective of the bomb, the United Nations could delay a world war for many years if it would only use its great organization (10,000 employes and annual expense of $40,000,000) for constructive work. Today these delegates are wasting their time on foolish arguments. They should be ashamed of themselves. Let me give one of the many possible illustrations of what I mean.

Nearly all the top brass are agreed that Russia's first attack will be against Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece, to get the oil fields of Iran and neutralize Italy and France. Here are the powder kegs which could destroy the world. Yet, it must seem terribly wicked to God to see his people go to war over the fair distribution of oil which He has freely given to all. People who own and develop oil land are entitled to receive fair compensation for their risk and expenses; but God will not forgive the hogging of this precious oil against the welfare of mankind. It truly seems as if the entire world is crazy not to insist now on a fair distribution of this oil to all nations, including Russia. For not leading such a movement, it seems as if the United Nations is the "international insane asylum" of our world.

Causes Of War Differ

There are many causes of war. God made people different and made nations different. Some are black, others are white; some are lazy, others are industrious; some are intelligent and others are ignorant. Nations also differ as to climate, rivers, harbors, and other resources. It would take a century to equalize many of these differences. The world's oil, however, which is needed everywhere by every nation, could be fairly distributed by the United Nations.

Until every nation — including Russia and China — has a fair quantity of oil, we must expect another world war. As God "sends his rain on the just and unjust," so the United Nations should send the oil to Iran to every other nation, instead of cowardly sitting by and making speeches.

What The UN Should Do

The United Nations should stop calling each other names like silly children. The delegates should realize that God gave the world the great oil fields. The delegates should insist that Iran should have a just recompense and not be scared by bribes, threats or intrigue, whether in England, Russia or the United States. The United Nations should further insist on a fair distribution of this oil and have all nations recognize that they need not resort to war to keep from being shut off from these God given resources. This is an illustration of what the United Nations should plan and fight for. Have we "Christian" nations forgotten the Four Freedoms, to which Churchill and Roosevelt agreed when World War II was going against them?

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

What War Can Cost

THE 1952 BUDGET, which may or may not be passed as is, amounts to $71,594,000,000. That compares with the 1951 budget of $47,210,000,000. Receipts for 1951 were estimated at $44,512,000,000; for 1952 at $55,138,000,000. That means that the government will run short about $16,456,000,000, which will have to be added to the national debt.

Of the $71,594,000,000 which the government plans to expend in 1952, $41,421,000,000 will be expended by the military services.

The President is employing the double budget method, which means that he adds to the budget separate appropriations, loan and contract authorizations part of which will be spent in 1952 and part in subsequent years. These bring the amount up to $94,400,000,000, to which is to be added an additional $4,100,000,000 that is to liquidate contract authorizations approved by Congress in prior years, for which he needs funds. The total will be $98,500,000,000.

This is the third largest appropriation in American history, being exceeded only by 1943 and 1944 when we were actually at war and spending like mad against time. No one in those years could tell how long the war would last or where we would be hit and therefore we spent our money on the assumption that by that means we would save American lives. It was war budgeting, frankly so accepted.

Then this same administration, which is now asking for so much, demobilized our armed forces, destroyed billions of dollars of usable materials, drove tanks into the ocean, put our fleet in moth balls, sold salvage goods everywhere, left deserted dumps of supplies and now it all is to be started all over again. And, unfortunately for us, it must be done all over again.

Meanwhile, the President wants to use our money to play politics as usual. So the items for social security, welfare and benefits rise in 1952 over 1951 by $100,000,000, although there certainly could be a cut, in view of the fact that we cannot afford luxuries at a time when the people are being taxed beyond their capacity to pay taxes. The Hoover reports are ignored.

Similarly, the President advocates a vast increase in socialist power development, which not only adds to the citizen's tax burdens but takes off the tax roll government-owned corporations. These tax free corporations, owned by the government, are luxuries which we cannot afford.

The most amazing fact about this budget is that it includes a concealed Brannan plan which the President knows that the country and the Congress reject but which turns up constantly like a privately minted bad penny. Nobody has yet been able to estimate the actual cost of the Brannan Plan. To add that on to a war budget is sheer financial madness.

The constitutional responsibility for the budget is in Congress, not in the presidency. Congress cannot dodge this responsibility. It alone has the power of the purse and must stand before the electorate in 1952 to answer for its conduct. The wasteful expenditure of the taxpayers' money is unjustified at any time. It becomes criminal at a time of rising prices, depreciated currency and war expenditures.

Congress has the final word in all this and should speak loud and clear and with a sense of responsibility to the electorate.

One of the tricks developed during the New Deal was to bring noble brass before a congressional committee who solemnly declare that they always need more and more money. To doubt the word or impugn the wisdom of brass is tantamount to treason in the eyes of many. So, we bow our heads and bend our knees and wait for the years to pass when we learn, from the course of events, that what we were told just ain't so. It would be interesting to go over all the congressional hearings since 1939 to compare statements made with the facts as they have disclosed themselves in due course.

Congressional investigations need to be conducted not to confuse the people. For instance, when Senator Connally sent his vulgarly insulting invitation to Herbert Hoover, requesting Mr. Hoover to attend his

And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house. . . . For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost. Luke 19:9-10 (K. J. V.). Read Mark 5:1-6.

Zacchaeus was growing harder by reason of the place to which he had been assigned by the standards of society. But he craved friendship, and he found it in Jesus. He was frowned upon by religionists, and no matter how deeply he may have desired a change, his greatest need was the presence of someone in his life in whose love and friendship he could believe. Jesus supplied that need.

Jesus did not say, "Zaccha[illegible], you are a sinner. I desire to have you turn from sin and follow me." No, as he sat at table with Zacchaeus and they looked into each other's eyes, and felt each other's heart throbs, Zacchaeus began to live in another world.

Jesus made him believe that he belonged in this new world. He began to see what was really important. He saw how petty his life was alongside the sacrificial life of Jesus. Jesus helped him change his mind about values, and when his mind was changed, his world was changed. He began to see life as Jesus saw it.

Let Us Pray: Help us, O Lord, to feel at home in the world that Jesus saw. May we see life steadily and see it whole. Amen.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

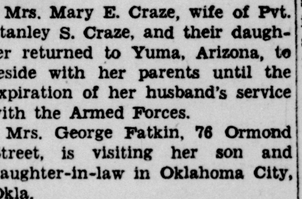

Can a teen-age girl be too good-looking?

Answer: Yes, particularly in her early teens. For the average boy of this age or a little older is very unsure of himself and of his power to attract the opposite sex, and so tends to shy away from a girl who seems to him to be so attractive that she can afford to be "choosy." He is likely to excuse his lack of self-confidence by saying that such girls are "stuck up." An extremely pretty girl of fifteen may find herself without boy friends unless she is careful to appear unconscious of her looks and ready to be friendly.

Are "tics" a neurotic symptom?

Answer: Often, though not always. A recurrent muscular spasm which a person cannot control may unconsciously embody some repressed wish or fear from childhood. In one patient secretly addicted to self-pity a tic of the facial muscles represented the repressed impulse to cry, while a ten-year-old boy whose case is described by Dr. Helen E. Durkin in the Quarterly Journal of Child Development repeatedly shook his head to deny to himself the existence of unconscious repressed hostile feelings towards his father. Both cases were cured by psychoanalytic treatment.

Is it childish to like nonsense?

Answer: Technically yes. But since we all have childish feelings which must find some outlet, it is better for them to take the form of deliberately talking or enjoying nonsense than to express themselves unconsciously in vanity or in irritation over trifles. Nobody can face the sterner aspects of reality continuously and chuckling over Mickey Mouse or Pluto may prevent your cracking under the tension of taking yourself and life too seriously. It is when you do not realize that you are being childish that you are headed for trouble.

The following projects were presented and accepted by the club: visiting of other Ruritan clubs during the year, especially in making up attendance; division of club into two groups to compete for higher attendance at meetings; distribution of flower seed at an early date; restoration of Ruritan highway markers; continuation of "Better-Mail-Box" campaign; and conducting of contest on outside home lighting at Christmas, with prizes to be awarded.

Polio Drive May Top $8,000 Mark

The 1951 March of Dimes campaign fund in Allegany County is expected to exceed $8,000, according to Mrs. Vivian L. Annan, executive secretary of the local Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Current incomplete returns for the drive total approximately $7,000 but the final tabulation of proceeds probably will take another week.

J. Milton Dick, president of the Potomac Park Improvement Association which sponsored a square dance for the polio fund, reported last night that more than $208 in admissions alone was realized from the event.

Frostburg contributed $1,800 and the goal for Lonaconing was set at $500. Westernport, Luke and McCoole donated $800 and Barton forwarded $545 to John M. Robb, county director.

Collections at Cumberland theaters amounted to $926, but returns from coin containers are still unavailable since some scattered recepticles are still to be collected.

About $7,000 was netted in last year's polio campaign in comparison to $9,100 collected in 1949. This year's drive was held from January 15-31.

Half of the returns remain in this county and the other half goes to the National Foundation for research and emergency aid wherever needed.

Elks Plan 1951 Benefit Minstrel

Rehearsals for the "Minstreiks of 1951," sponsored by Cumberland Lodge No. 63, B.P.O. Elks, to raise funds for the Allegany County League for Crippled Children will get underway Thursday at 8 p. m.

A call for talent for the show has been issued and persons interested in participating are expected to attend the meeting Thursday night.

The show will be entitled "Facts, Fancies and Figures" and will be presented at the Maryland Theater on April 17 and 18. It is not necessary to be a member of the Elks to sign up for the show. A larger glee club of men and women is needed this year and more dancing girls can be used.

Skits will include cave men, Mark Anthony and Cleopatra, Christopher and Isabella, Bluebeard and Forever Amber, courtship of Miles Standish, Paul Revere skit, Cinderella, a Hades scene with Mister Devil, and a parody on a Cumberland historical event.

French Sensabaugh will direct the production.

Fire Chief Lindner Retires After 30 Years Of Service

William L. Lindner, after more than 30 years in the blaze-battling profession, has resigned as Cumberland's fire chief.

Lindner was appointed to the position only last month by the mayor and City Council. He was to have served until a chief is appointed through civil service examination sometime in the spring, but illness has forced an early retirement.

Lindner began his career as a fireman July 1, 1920, shortly after returning to civilian life following a tour of Army duty overseas in World War 1.

A pipeman and later a driver, he was promoted to lieutenant with the inauguration of the two-platoon system in 1925. Less than ten years later, he was made captain to succeed Edward R. Connell, who died October 1, 1934. He was promoted to assistant chief May 19, 1947, and served as acting chief during the illness of Chief John E. Brennan, who died last December 10.

Chief Lindner had about a year-and-a-half to go before reaching the compulsory retirement age of 60, although he had planned on serving until his 59th birthday March 26. On that date, Cumberland's paid Fire Department will be 45 years old, having been inaugurated March 26, 1906.

Lindner has watched the department progress through the past 30 years, hailing the purchase of the $32,000 85-foot aerial truck two years ago as an important cog in the city's fire defense.

Known among fellow workers as a fearless fire fighter, Chief Lindner's last big blaze was Christmas night when he directed the attack in a four-alarm fire that swept a Negro tenement on Wineow Street, taking the life of one person and making a score of others homeless. It was Lindner who discovered the body of Chalmers "Cutie" Parnell in the debris.

When Lindner started as a fireman, there were only 21 alarm boxes in the city and three engine companies to offer protection. Now there are four engine companies, a truck company and 86 different locations where an alarm can be turned in.

Lindner helped to battle most of Cumberland's big conflagrations during the past 30 years and lists his most heart-rending experience a Christmas night fire on Williams Street almost a score of years ago when it was impossible to save a mother and her daughter from burning to death.

His most amusing experience came when he rescued a kitten from a burning apartment on North Centre Street. "The meowing cat sounded exactly like a child crying," Lindner said.

Chief Lindner has been cited for his work at fires on a number of occasions, and in 1922, he was commended by George W. Legge, Jr., who later became mayor of Cumberland.

Lindner was driving the truck of Engine Company No. 1 to a potato chip factory blaze on Mechanic Street when he became involved in a "near-collision" with an auto in which Mr. Legge's father, wife and child were riding. Legge's letter of commendation said Lindner avoided hitting the car at the heroic risk of his own life.

Chief Lindner remembers the $250,000 Peskin fire January 26, 1940 and the October 2, 1941 North Centre Street explosion which claimed six lives and injured a score of others, as his biggest jobs.

"We've been lucky on some other fires," Lindner said, recalling a cold Sunday afternoon in February 1940, just a month to the day from the Peskin blaze, when 700 persons made their way to safety after flames broke out in the Liberty Theatre.

Other big fires which he helped to combat were Miller's Warehouse back of Rosenbaum's Store, Bayer's Wholesale Grocery on Commerce Street, Buchanan Lumber Company, Greene Street School, Potomac Glass Company, Box Factory, Zihlman's Glass Factory, East End Hotel, Bennett's Storage Company, Vang Construction Roundhouse, Glisan's Garage and the Liberty Trust Building.

Chief Lindner, who is confined by a heart ailment to his home, 516 Columbia Avenue, served with the 313th Infantry, 79th Division, during the first World War.

Liberty Theatre Gets New Manager

The Liberty Theatre has a new manager, Mack S. Herbert arriving in Cumberland last week to succeed Monroe Kaplan who has gone to Ohio.

Mr. Herbert has had experience in every branch of theatre business. He has been an actor, has served as master of ceremonies, operated a booking unit, staged productions and managed theatres, both movie house and so-called "legitimate" theatres. All his 30 years in the business has been in New York except for a brief interlude in Hartford, Conn.

Matter Of Fact

with a very fishy eye at certain business practices. Almost five billion defense dollars, according to Economic Stabilizer Eris Johnson, have already gone down the drain because of higher prices charged to the Defense Department. This cannot possibly be accounted for wholly in terms of higher costs. For many defense items, the Defense Department has in effect been subject to a sort of polite holdup. Many businesses are refusing to bid on defense orders, simply because the civilian market is more lucrative.

Wilson is determined to deal with this sort of thing. Moreover, he is convinced that in many cases amortization rates are much too high, in effect permitting industry to build new plants at the expense of the taxpayer, and he intends to deal with this matter also. Thus a third Wilson battle, this time with business, is also in prospect.

No nation can embark on a great rearmament program and maintain its standard of living absolutely intact. Yet the tragedy of the present situation is that Wilson and his advisers are deeply convinced that only a little self-denial will get the national economy back on an even keel in only about a year and a half. This country's fabulous productive capacity will then make it possible to carry the double load of civilian demand and a great defense effort. Yet if labor, agriculture and business continue to "act like pigs," while the government follows an inflationary money policy, the end may well be real disaster. At least the country is fortunate in a mobilization chief, who, although he can certainly make mistakes, consults the national interest first and foremost, and is not afraid of a fight.

Odd Fellows Plan Special Events

Chapel Hill Lodge No. 53, I. O. O. F., will meet at Odd Fellows Hall, Virginia Avenue, today at 7 p. m. instead of the usual hour of 7:30.

The lodge will be hosts to the Tri-State Past Grands Association at its monthly meeting at 8 p. m. The committee, under direction of George McCracken, has arranged a musical program. Refreshments will be served.

A special election will be held at both Chosen Friends Lodge No. 34 and Chapel Hill Lodge No. 53 at their first meeting in March for the purpose of balloting for grand warden of the Grand Lodge of Maryland. At the regular election in December none of the candidates for this office obtained a majority, necessitating a special election for this office. Only past grands of the lodges are eligible to vote.

Cumberland Encampment No. 23, I. O. O. F., will confer the Royal Purple Degree as a courtesy of Mt. Carmel Encampment No. 7, Westernport, at a meeting Tuesday night in Odd Fellows Temple, South Mechanic Street. Encampments in Western Maryland have been invited to attend. Memorial Staff Honors Nurse

Miss Carrie Harden, RN., acting superintendent of nurses at Memorial Hospital, was honored Saturday by the hospital staff at a dinner at Cumberland Country Club.

She was presented a gift in recognition of her many years service at the institution. A graduate of the old Western Maryland Hospital, she was employed at that institution for a number of years. When Memorial Hospital opened she continued her duties as supervisor and later assistant director of nurses.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moberly were guests. Mr. Moberly, who is superintendent of the hospital, paid tribute to Miss Harden's years of service.

Association Adds Seven Members

Seven new members have been signed up by the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association and there are vacancies for about 10 more dairy men, according to officials of the group.

New members of the association are R. E. Carskadon, of Headsville, W. Va.; Olin B. Platt, Greenspding, W. Va.; Marshall Porter, of Frostburg; Paul E. Greise, Route 3, city; C. A. Liller, of Cresaptown; Harry T. Duckworth, of Route 3, Keyser, W. Va.; and George M. Barton, of Route 3, Keyser.

We are in a state of Emergency.
We must build our military strength—and,
at the same time, we must keep our economy strong for the long pull. Inflation bleeds both!

How to pay for tanks and guns — and still hold the line on Inflation

No American begrudges one dollar necessary for defense but nobody wants to spend a single cent unnecessarily.

Congress has the responsibility of reducing non-defense spending as much as possible. What is left will still be a big enough burden for all of us.

There are two ways we can pay for defense while holding the line against Inflation.

The first way, which President Truman has endorsed, is to go on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. Under this plan the Government takes more from everybody in taxes to balance its income with its spending. Every individual then, has less to spend. This stops some of the demand for scarce civilian goods and helps make what is available go around.

To make "pay-as-you-go" work, and to keep the Federal debt from going higher, all individuals and businesses will face higher Federal income taxes as well as other taxes which both add to the Government's income and discourage individual spending. This calls for tough decisions and sacrifices.

The second and less desirable way is for the Government to pay for part of its spending by borrowing. The least inflationary way to borrow is from the people. This is done by selling bonds to individuals or to investing institutions. By this method people save, instead of spending for scarce goods, and this helps reduce the demand for these goods. Borrowing, however, means increased taxes now as well as later to pay this debt.

5 more things that must be done to check Inflation—even with price controls

1. Increase production: To meet defense needs and provide civilian necessities.
2. Maintain credit curbs: To reduce the competition for civilian goods.
3. Increase personal savings: To provide investment money for greater production and to lessen the demand for goods.
4. Buy only for real needs: Overbuying only increases shortages, and adds to the inflationary pressures.
5. Cut non-military expenditures: To provide money for vital military needs and to hold down tax increases and borrowing.

These things won't be easy for any of us to do. We must also forego increased wages and profits unless they are the result of increased production. But everybody will agree it's worth sacrificing to prevent the Sixth Column Enemy—INFLATION—from bleeding our economy.

This message is brought to you by the life insurance companies and their agents who believe that keeping America strong is the job of each and every one of us.

Light Heavies Get Garden Go

Murphy, Matthews Tangle On Friday

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — Irish Bobby Murphy and Harry Matthews, a couple of West Coast light heavies with terrific knockout records, clash Friday night with a possible title shot at stake. The ten rounder will be held in Madison Square Garden.

Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., is ranked as the No. 2 contender to light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim. Murphy, the red-topped sailor from San Diego, is ranked third. Old Archie Moore is the No. 1 challenger who has probably despaired by now of ever getting a 175-pound king in the ring with him.

Murphy, who has hung up 13 straight knockout victories since being flattened by Clarence Henry a year ago, has gained a huge following in these parts with his sensational style. Matthews, undefeated in his last 52 fights, will be making his New York debut. Almost all of his wins have been scored on the West Coast.

Both are ex-servicemen. Both are 28, and both have outstanding records.

The 10 p.m. (EST) bout will be broadcast by ABC and telecast by NBC.

Put Boy Together Right, World Will Take Care Of Itself, Herman Ball Says

Michelosen, Dudley Among 25 Notables At Dapper Dan Banquet

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

"If you put the boy together right the world will take care of itself."

That was the keynote of Coach Herman Ball's address at the third annual Dapper Dan banquet last night at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

A charitable organization, the local Dapper Dan club donated all proceeds of last night's affair at which more than 350 persons attended to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Sport Notables Speak

Ball was one of more than 25 sports notables who attended the dinner and spoke briefly including John Michelosen, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Praising the work of the Dapper Dan organization as a whole and the local club particularly, Ball commented that a good slogan for the charity group to follow would be that of the East-West Shrine football game which says "We play so that they may walk."

Telling the story of a little boy who was given the job of putting a map of the world together after his father had torn it up to keep the youth occupied, Ball related how the boy completed the task within a few minutes. When his father asked him how he did it the boy replied "There was a picture of a crippled boy on the back of the map, Dad, and I just turned it over and put the boy together."

Noting that the "nation ignores its youth too much," Ball related that putting the boy together correctly would enable the future world to take care of itself.

Dudley Among Visitors

Among the out-of-town notables who attended the huge affair were Robert Davis, defensive end of Pittsburgh Steelers; Bill Dudley, All-America product from the University of Virginia, now of the Washington Redskins and formerly with the Steelers and Detroit Lions; John Rokisky, ex-Duquesne University All-America end and formerly of the Cleveland Browns, Chicago Rockets and New York Yankees; Harry Dowda, Washington Redskins' halfback; Bill McPeak, of the Steelers; Ernie Sesto, well known Pittsburgh boxing referee, and Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and national president of the Dapper Dans.

Marty Furgol Cops Tourney

Takes Houston Open And $2,000 With 277

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 25 (AP)—Tall Marty Furgol had his iron shots and putter under fine control today while winning his first major golf championship and $2,000 in first prize money in the Houston Open.

The 33-year-old Long Beach, Calif., pro turned in a three-under par 69 for a 72-hole 277 on the 6967-yard Memorial Park course.

For a while it looked as though there would be a tie between Furgol and young Jack Burke of Houston, but Burke took a penalty stroke on the sixteenth hole and his 69 gave him a 278 and second place.

Burke's $1,400 shot him to second place at $4,116 among the top money winners of the winter tournament circuit.

Furgol was even par through the first seven holes but started moving when he connected for a 30-foot chip shot that gained a two-under 3 on the 491-yard eighth.

He lost a stroke on the ninth green but came back on the backside with one-under putts at 8, 40 and 12 feet.

Ed (Porky) Oliver, Seattle, Wash., who went five over par yesterday after being the second round leader, came back with a 68 and $1,000 in third place money today with a 279.

KEEPING UP WITH HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25 (INS)—Harpo Marx, who has never spoken a word on the screen, is about to put his name on a contract for a motion picture in which, as usual he'll utter nary a word.

Harpo Marx

The story is "The Man Who Voted No," one of the all-time hilarious satires on Communism. The author, Adele Comandini, tells about a village idiot and deaf mute in the iron curtain countries who votes against Uncle Joe Stalin's regime. But the idiot is so loved by the people that the Communists do not dare touch him.

Final details are being completed for Gilbert Goldsmith Rothschild, son of Baroness Rothschild, to make the picture in Paris.

The always unpredictable Shelley Winters and Farley Granger are planning to take a four months' trip to Europe together this summer. If this isn't their honeymoon, which it seems likely it will be, Shelley's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Schrift of New York, will act as chaperones.

After Shelley finishes "Fiddler's Green" for Universal-International, and "Behave Yourself" with Farley for RKO, she will have four unreleased pictures. When Farley completes "I Want You" and "Behave Yourself" he will have two movies all made.

He left an automobile in Paris when he was abroad last year and he and Shelley will motor through Europe. They hope to leave about June 1.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Rumor hounds, who hinted at trouble between the John Waynes because she remained in Mexico City so long, may now get indigestion eating their words. Friday Mrs. Wayne flew from Mexico City to join John in New York for a few days before he leaves for Europe with Herbert Yates.

She returns to the sanitorium near Mexico City where she has been undergoing treatment for a nervous condition which affects her skin. One of Mexico's most famous skin specialists is flying back from South America to treat Mrs. Wayne.

June Havoc takes over for Celeste Holm when Celeste leaves "Affairs Of State" on June 1—and June was an excited girl when she called long distance to tell me the good news. I don't blame her. It's a great break and I'm sure she will do a good job.

Her contract calls for "run of the play" on Broadway which means June will be east for a long time.

Luckily, Bill Spier's radio directing work permits him to be with her in New York and they are looking for an apartment now. There's one gal who loves her man and doesn't believe in being separated from him for any reason.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis will marry later this year. Tony says that somebody is spreading gossip that they are having trouble, but it will take more than that to kill a real romance, and Janet agrees with him.

Dr. Peter Lindstrom has just bought a new house for $40,000. It's located in fashionable Beverly Hills in Benedict Canyon. Each time the doctor looked at the house he was accompanied by an attractive young woman.

Liz Taylor will celebrate her 19th birthday Tuesday and she'll be in Washington, D. C. Bets are down that Stanley Donen will fly there to celebrate with her.

Kathryn Grayson and Johnny Johnston have reached an amicable financial agreement and Katie will file for divorce in Santa Monica in about a week.

Barbara Stanwyck has closed a deal for the purchase of a house in Beverly Glen. Everyone is glad that Barbara is being seen again. She was with Jack Benny at Mocambo (with Mary's permission), and the next night she went to a preview of "Ace In The Hole" with 150 other guests.

Cesar Romero is being seen constantly with Beverly Stoner. She was formerly Bob Sterling's fiancee. Thursday night they were at the Tallyho at a table for two.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Fifty-Three Minutes

ON THE last of Jimmy Durante's perfectly wonderful television shows, there was an interval of comic pantomine by a couple of zanies whose names I didn't catch. It lasted, according to the temperamental mechanism on my wrist, three and a half minutes. Later a Spanish dancer leapt about for a period of a minute and a half; a chorus line displayed legs (very pretty ones) for 30 seconds; and the Pet Milk Company succeeded with considerable difficulty in interjecting its name into the proceedings for the space of one minute.

John Crosby

The rest of the hour, a total of 53 and a half minutes, was taken over by James Durante, clowning, singing, scratching his head, trying on hats, duelling with Don Ameche, ogling a Motorola, pinching the girls and playing the piano. It was one hell of an exhibition of virtuosity and, as far as the listener is concerned, a very delightful one. But how long can the great man take the punishment? He blew his lines only twice, a matter of no great moment in his case. For so severe a course, that's way under par.

• — • — •

Seems to me that the smash hits of television—Mr. Berle, Mr. Durante, to name only two—have been one-man affairs. The scenery, the exhibition of female bodies, the singers, the dog acts have been simply devices to give the stars a chance to change their clothes and mop their brows. NBC has been very lucky in finding a couple of distance men who can go a mile and a quarter. But I don't know where they're going to find any more. We're going to have to breed a new-type comedian for television. Man who can sing, dance, act, memorize 60 pages of dialogue a week, has a 1,000-watt personality and needs the money. There's the rub—the money. The entertainers who have all those qualifications are already intolerably rich and famous. Television hasn't much to offer them except headaches.

Since Mr. Durante has been scrutinized pretty thoroughly in this column before, I'll pause for only one other observation before hurrying along to other matters. There was a sketch on the show concerning a CBS man trying to lure Durante to that other network. Well, bless my soul, I can recall way, way back—oh, all of four years—when the mention of CBS on an NBC show was about as blasphemous as taking the Lord's name in vain.

If it was mentioned at all, it was by euphemism—"that place on Madison Avenue"—like sex, CBS was a dirty word. William S. Paley's name was bandied around, too, which just goes to show how far we have progressed in the last four years. In that time, the Paley name has become recognized joke material like Hollywood smog, Bob Hope's nose, Bing Crosby's derriere and the Kinsey report. Better than the Kinsey report, as a matter of fact. The Kinsey report is just a smirk. Paley is a yok.

• — • — •

To pass on to other matters, two of the most celebrated voices of our time were united in an unholy alliance the other night on the radio. The two: Bing Crosby and Tallulah Bankhead. (Spent a sleepless night, wondering whom to give top billing in this paragraph. It was settled by the toss of a coin.) This union, this rich mixture of vibrant timbers, is the greatest test my radio ever passed. After all, a radio tube can take only so much, and the combined voltage of Miss Bankhead and Mr. Crosby (you're all even now, kids) is something Lee de Forest hadn't considered when he invented the darn thing. My radio shuddered a bit. Probably shortened its life span. But it came through.

The rest of the show was a spirited contest between two experts. In the matter of insult, Mr. C., I think, had the better of it. "(Tallulah's singing voice) sounds a little like the mating call of a tone-deaf moose." "You're the only woman I know who can say 'revolting' for 16 bars." They matched laughter, too—Tallulah's strident guffaw against Bing's resonant chuckle—and here I think Tallulah won the honors. It would take Fred Waring's glee club to drown out that laugh of Tallulah's.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of my Mother, Annie O'Donnell, who passed away 7 years ago today, Feb. 26, 1944.
No one knows how much I miss you,
No one knows the biter pain
I have suffered; since I lost you
Life has never been the same.
In my heart your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That I do not think of you.
Your Daughter, Ruth Durkin

In memory of Marjorie Dale Byrne, who died February 26, 1944.
Seven sad years have passed, Marjorie
Since you went away.
Our circle has been broken,
But we will meet you there someday.
Beyond the sunset.
In God's Heaven above
We know you are with Jesus
Safe in His love.
Sadly missed by
Husband, son, mother and sisters

Va. Police Probe Cross Burnings

MANAKIN, Va., Feb. 25 (AP) — A six-foot cross was burned in front of a negro family's home here late last night, and authorities said it was the third such incident in this area within a week.

In all three cases — two in this Goochland County community and the third in the western section of adjoining Henrico County — the crosses were burned in front of the homes of negro tavern owners.

Police said they were unable to give any reason for the burnings. They added that shots were fired from an automobile which left the scene of at least two of the cross-burnings.

The cross last night burned in front of the home of John B. Pittman, owner of a small tavern about 11 miles west of Richmond. Pittman told authorities he heard a commotion in front of his home and saw the cross blazing when he went to the front door.

Five or six white men were running from the cross, Pittman said. The men jumped in a car parked nearby, one of them fired a pistol into the air five times, and the car then drove away, he told authorities.

Concerning water development, the report said navigation in the tidewater sections is the single adequately developed potential.

Power Is Unused

"The hydroelectric power potential of the basin is almost completely unused at present," it said.

"Floods generally are uncontrolled; protection has been provided only at some very critical damage points.

"Conservation storage is practically nonexistent.

"Pollution damages the fishery resources and adds to the cost of water supply and navigation maintenance . . .

"On the whole, the large potentialities of the basin for serving human needs generally are being allowed to go unused."

The commission recalled that a series of 11 reservoirs were authorized for preliminary examination in 1944 but reported on unfavorably by Army Engineers because of local opposition.

Such reservoirs, the report added, would give flood protection to Washington, and upstream communities, would yield power, would abate pollution, especially for Washington and the industrial areas along the North Branch between Luke and Cumberland, Md., and would benefit the fisheries in the tidal reach of the river.

Taft Hits Waste In Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said today he thinks the armed forces are "unduly wasteful."

"Somebody ought to make a thorough examination," he said, "and see if we can't get the same results with less money."

In time of war, Taft said, it's not possible to check on the armed services. But now, he said, a study should be made of their spending.

Taft appeared on the University of Chicago Round Table radio program. The subject up for discussion: "Inflation And Price Control."

Taft listed four steps he thinks should be taken:

1. Check on the spending by the armed forces.
2. Try to step up production.
3. Prevent inflation, by limited credits, balancing the government budget, levying "necessary" taxes. "I think we can levy to high taxes, though," he said. One good rule on credits, Taft said, is: "Don't spend what you don't have."
4. Carry on the program in "such a way as to always look forward to a return to a normal economy."

Five Children Injured When Plane Crashes Into Play Platform

CLARK TOWNSHIP, N. J., Feb. 25 (AP)—A small plane swooped into a raised play platform today, showering a nearby group of frightened children with wooden debris.

Seven boys and girls were treated for cuts, bruises and contusions and remained at their homes.

Police said the plane, which was taking off from the Westfield airport, was about 50 feet in the air when it suddenly dropped. Its left wing hit the play platform near a group of homes in a development on Ridge Road, police said.

The top of the play platform was sheared off. None of the children were on the flatform at the time.

Police said the pilot, Fred Bross, 26, Cranford, told them he swerved the plane to avoid hitting the houses. Bross and a student pilot, Alfred Sanderson, 29, Metuchen, were unhurt.

Vindex Miner Fatally Hurt In Auto Crash

Four Others Hurt When Car Hits Pole

A Vindex man was fatally injured and four other persons were hurt, two seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a telephone power line pole near Swanton Saturday night.

The driver of the vehicle, Thomas Whitacre, 21, is being held in Garrett County jail, Oakland, pending further investigation of the accident by the state's attorney and the sheriff's office, authorities said.

William Franklin Stewart, 32, died yesterday at 2:30 a. m. in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, where he had been admitted suffering from a fractured skull.

Badly injured, according to Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Garrett County coroner, who investigated the mishap, were the dead man's wife, Mrs. Wanda Harvey Stewart, 22, who suffered possible chest injuries, and Leo Tasker, 15, who had a compound fracture of the right femur bone, a simple fracture below the knee of the right leg and a broken left wrist. Both were taken to a Morgantown, W. Va., hospital.

Driver Questioned

Also hurt in the wreck were the driver of the 1941 Plymouth sedan and Betty Lou Michaels, 15, both of whom had minor bruises and abrasions. They were treated at the Oakland hospital and released. Trooper Robert Henline, Maryland State Police, reported. All the car's occupants were from Vindex, the officer stated.

State's Attorney Dwight Stover said yesterday Whitacre has been questioned and will be held in the county jail pending further investigation of his office.

Henline said the accident occurred about 8:30 p. m. Saturday on Maryland Route No. 135 as the car was traveling east toward Swanton when Whitacre apparently lost control of the wheel and the vehicle smashed into the power pole, shearing it off at the base. The car then careened several yards away Henline noted.

The Michaels girl was riding in the front seat with Whitacre and the other three passengers were in the back seat Henline said.

Enroute To Westernport

According to the driver, Henline related, the group had left Vindex and were on their way to Westernport when the mishap occurred.

Stewart, a coal miner employed near Morgantown, was a native of Vindex and the son of Mrs. Ada Trout Stewart and the late Jesse Francis Stewart. He was a veteran of World War II and served three years overseas. He belonged to the United Mine Workers of America.

Surviving besides his mother and widow are two brothers, Marshall, Kitzmiller, and Albert, Vindex; three sisters, Mrs. Riley Evans, Kitzmiller, Mrs. William A. Tasker, Vindex, and Mrs. Oliver Dixon, Masontown, W. Va.

The body will be taken to the home of his mother, in Vindex, today.

KILLED IN CRASH — William Franklin Stewart, 32, Vindex coal miner, died of injuries received in an automobile wreck near Swanton Saturday night. The World War II veteran suffered a fractured skull and succumbed in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, several hours after the mishap.

Heart Program Endangered As Campaign Lags

Final Effort For $7,000 Goal Starts

The campaign for funds to operate the local Heart Clinic and continue the program of home nursing and training for victims of rheumatic fever is continuing here, but the campaign committee reports that the $7,000 goal is not yet in sight.

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, president of the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever and Heart Association, said last night that a final effort is to be made this week to reach the local quota. Persons desiring to contribute can mail their subscriptions to Heart Fund, Cumberland, Md.

Important Program

The importance of continuing the clinic and home nursing program is brought out forcefully in a recent report from a study made by a nationally known life insurance company. The report emphasizes the need for proper counsel from physicians and training by home nurses.

The study which traced survivorship among 3,000 patients at ages 1 to 20 shows 7 out of 8 to be still living at least 10 years later. The patients received nursing care from the company between 1936 and 1938.

Indications are that most of the survivors are leading quite normal lives. Those reaching adult life are working, and many have married. A large proportion of the girls in the group have become mothers, and not a few have borne several children.

A large number of the older boys were in military service during World War II. Many of them were in combat units and five were killed in action.

Among the children with no evident heart damage during the acute episode for which they were nursed, survivorship after 10 years was at the rate of 92 percent, and even among those with evidence of heart damage it was at the rate of 71 percent. The record for the girls was somewhat better than for the boys.

Many Can Recover

The study, based almost entirely on the experience of children in wage earning families, shows that the prospect of virtually complete recovery from rheumatic fever is good in a great many cases. Moreover, the prospect has been greatly improved by recent advances in treatment, proper care and training.

"On the other hand, the investigation shows clearly the serious effect of significant heart damage sustained during the attack," the statisticians declare. "This emphasizes the importance of early detection and of good medical and nursing care of children with rheumatic fever."

Normal living and normal lives can be restored to more than a hundred rheumatic fever cases in this county, if the program of the Heart Association here can be continued, Dr. Jacobson emphasized.

Home Rule Bill, Pay Raises Set For Hearings

Delegation To Visit Annapolis Wednesday

A large delegation from Cumberland is expected to go to Annapolis Wednesday to attend hearings on bills providing for home rule for this city and for wage increases and improved vacations and sick leave for city firemen and policemen.

The House Judiciary committee will hold a hearing on the home rule bill Wednesday at 3 p. m.

The legislation was introduced by the Allegany County Delegation at the request of the Mayor and Council.

The bill provides for the election of an 11 member committee to draw up the charter, which would then be submitted to the voters in a referendum.

It would give the city the power to make its own laws, subject to the constitutional and general laws of the state.

Decline Comment

Members of the delegation have generally declined comment on the home rule except to say that it would deprive citizens of the right to appeal to the Legislature.

At 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, members of the Delegation will hear proponents and opponents of the city police and firemen's legislation.

The bills, sponsored by Delegates Driscoll, Kelley, See and Reed, by request, are HB 357, HB 358 and HB 359.

The first, relating to wage increases for city firemen, changes the rate of fire chief to $80 a week; assistant fire chief, $75 a week; fire captain, $72.50; fire lieutenant, $70; drivers, $67.50; privates, $65, and probationers, $57 a week.

It adds $740 to the yearly rate of privates, or pipemen, who now get $220 a month, upping some ratings to the $900 mark.

Police Pay Raise

HB359, calling for increases to members of the Police Department, provides an $80 a week salary for the police chief; $75 for the assistant chief; $72.50 for lieutenants; $70 for sergeants; $68.50 for the de-

Today's Sermonette

On the following day, when they came from Bethany, he was hungry. And seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see if he could find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves. Mark 11:12-14

By REV. W. RANDOLPH KEEFE

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday morning at Grace Baptist Church by the pastor, Rev. W. Randolph Keefe. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

"LEAVES ONLY"

ON THE Sunday before Jesus went out from Jerusalem to Bethany there was the singing of hosannas. In the city they had received Him with a royal welcome. He entered amid the lofty praise of the people. "Hosanna in the highest," they cried, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." Loud were their acclamations. Before that day was over Jesus was driving out of the temple those whose worship was so lacking in sincerity that they had made of God's house a place of merchandise and a den of thieves.

Rev. Keefe

At eventide he went out unto Bethany with the twelve. Jesus was in need of rest and fellowship. Great is our need in these days for the same. When we are too busy to take time for meditation and communion with God we are far too busy. Often we are busy commercializing the Lord's house. Jesus wants us to make it a house of prayer. We busy ourselves making it a place of merchandise with our church suppers, rummage sales, etc. We have the appearance of being active in the Lord's work when our activity is bearing no spiritual fruit.

The church has something to offer the community which no other institution or organization can offer. We who are members of the church are responsible for the giving of spiritual food to those among whom we live. God forbid that we be satisfied with that which is secondary. To let any other activity be substituted for this vital food is to be like the fig tree that bore leaves only.

Jesus cast out of the temple those that were thieves and robbers. We too are fit only to be cast out if we rob our community of that spiritual food so greatly needed. The life of our nation and the nations of the earth depend upon the spiritual fruit which is our sacred responsibility to bear.

When the five thousand were without food Jesus said, "Give ye them to eat." When the fig tree was full of leaves, and yet gave no fruit to him who came seeking food, Jesus cursed it. If we rob men of that fruit which we can offer, then we deserve the treatment Jesus meted out to the thieves in the temple; perhaps even the curse which He pronounced on the fig tree that bore leaves only.

Will you during these days when many are dedicating themselves unto the Lord make His house a house of prayer among all the nations? This is no time to be a leafy Christian. There is no room in His church for sham or pretense; no time for secondary service. Let us cleanse our hearts and our temples and bear fruit.

Class Completes Red Cross Special Home Nurse Course

Cumberland is already well on its way toward "Mobilizing for Defense" Allegany County Chapter Red Cross officials said in announcing 12 women have completed a special home nursing instructor course at Allegany Hospital.

Miss Sena Anderson, R. N., training instructor of Red Cross Eastern Area, with headquarters at Alexandria, Va., was instructor of the local groups.

These 12 women are thoroughly trained to give emergency care to atomic casualties after studying new material prepared in cooperation with the national civil defense administration. This training emphasized the importance of the order in which large numbers of casualties may be treated: severe hemorrhage, asphyxia or serious breathing difficulty, and deep shock requiring immediate life-saving attention.

All the training the women have received in their 30-hour course emphasizes the importance of self-help in the confusion likely to follow any large scale attack. These women are now qualified to instruct other classes and plans are underway to start a training program in Allegany County under their direction. They will help fill the gap caused by the draining of large numbers of professional, medical and nursing people to disaster areas and they can be used to prepare local families against the dangers of infection, exposure, communicable diseases, and other by-products of large-scale attack. The care of evacuees will also come under their jurisdiction.

Miss Anderson is a graduate of St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn., served in Mayo Clinic, and is a graduate of State Teachers College, Oshkosh, Wis. She received her B. S. degree from Columbia University, N. Y.

Graduates of the local course are Mrs. Mary A. Bartlett, Potomac Park; Mrs. Greta Beeman, 407 Decatur Street; Mrs. Harriet Jean Boore, 43 Marion Street; Miss Joan Broeseker, 901 Louisiana Avenue; Mrs. Lona Daum, 704 Brookfield Avenue; Miss Betty Cecelia Engle, 289 E. People Share Blame For Slow Reclamation In Potomac Basin

Report Lists 13 Problems Which Must Be Met In Developing Area To Top Position

By FRANK TAYLOR
AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — The people themselves are blamed in part by a study commission for slow development of the Potomac River Basin.

This basin could be developed to rank with the best of the world's river areas, the staff of the President's Water Resources Policy Commission said in a report made public today.

But, the report said, "The Potomac River was found to have one of the most serious pollution problems of all the basins studied."

A big obstacle to development of the Potomac, the report added, is conflict in views among the residents of the basin lying in Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

"Among 10 of the basins studied by the commission," the report said, "the Potomac is the only one in which an important beneficial program has been refused because of conflicts in point of view among residents of the basin as to the purpose and form of development.

"Nowhere in the country is the weighing of special interest against general welfare, or the balancing of regional and local desires against national benefits, more difficult.

Appraisal Needed

"Nowhere is an understanding appraisal of the intangibles in resource development more clearly needed."

To develop the Potomac area to a top position, the report added, there must be "proper land management, flood control, wise drainage practices, improved water supplies, pollution abatement, development of the hydro electric power resources, navigation, fish and wildlife conservation, full economic use of mineral resources, and use of the manifold recreation possibilities."

With such gains the Potomac Basin "should achieve a position of eminence among basins in this country or abroad," the report added.

"This would be an achievement worthy of its position as the seat of (federal) government.

"It would be a model for comparable programs elsewhere in the nation."

Lists 13 Problems

The staff said 13 problems "are worthy of consideration in appraising the present Potomac Basin situation."

It divided these into four groups and listed them as follows:

A—protection of basic resources.

1—need for land treatment programs in a comprehensive plan for water use.

2—need for pollution control (except mine wastes.)

3—need for control of acid mine wastes.

4—need and responsibility to maintain and enhance fish and wildlife in water resources development.

5—need for stream flow regulation.

B—apparent conflicts in beneficial use.

1—conflict between plans for storage reservoirs and interest of local groups in preventing land flooding.

2 Brothers Shot To Death During Family Quarrel

3 Others Hurt In Cherry Grove Fight

FRANKLIN, W. Va., Feb. 25 (AP)—Two elderly brothers were slain before the eyes of their 85-year-old mother yesterday when a smouldering intra-family mountain quarrel erupted into gunplay.

Three other persons, including a third brother, were wounded in the shooting at nearby Cherry Grove, in eastern West Virginia.

State Trooper R. E. Schnell said today murder charges have been placed against the surviving brother, Jesse Vandevander, about 62.

The officer said Vandevander, lying critically wounded in a hospital at Harrisonburg, Va., admitted doing all the shooting. He and his wife lived next door to the home of his aged mother.

Tells Of Quarrel

State Police said Vandevander complained from his hospital bed that the others had been "picking on him" for a long time, and that he "lost his head and started shooting at them."

Schnell identified the victims as: Jacob Vandevander, about 61, and Wayne S. Vandevander, about 60, both shot to death.

Virgil Vandevander, 25-year-old nephew of Jess, in serious condition with shotgun wounds in the lung and leg.

Betty Alice Bennett, 50, wounded in the leg.

Hospital authorities at Rockingham Memorial Hospital in Harrisonburg said today that Jesse and Virgil Vandevander are still in serious condition.

Earlier, attendants said Jesse probably would not survive the two rifle wounds in his chest.

Violent Episode

After questioning several other members of the Vandevander family, Trooper R. E. West said he had pieced together this account of the violent episode:

A long string of family troubles resulted in the serving of a peace warrant on Jess Vandevander, who lived next door to his mother.

After a continuing court hearing on the peace warrant yesterday, several members of the family gathered at Mrs. Vandevander's home.

Suddenly Jess pointed a .25-.35 calibre shotgun through his window and started firing at the group next door. After five or six blasts from the shotgun had felled his two brothers, nephew and the Bennett woman, Jess emerged from his house with a .33 calibre rifle.

He placed the muzzle against his chest and pulled the trigger. The shot drove him back a couple of feet. He reloaded, fired again, and collapsed.

West said he was summoned by Mrs. Darie Arbaugh, Wayne Vandevander's daughter.

Bowman's Addition Volunteer Fire Company battled for half an hour yesterday morning to extinguish a grass blaze that burned over five acres of ground and threatened three houses in the area.

The blaze began about 11:30 a.m. behind the Stanley Ruby home, Bowman's Addition, and spread rapidly with a brisk wind aiding the flames. Firemen were able to put out the blaze with no other damage reported.

West Side Fire Company extinguished a grass fire at the rear of 541 Arnett Terrace yesterday afternoon. Firemen answered the alarm at 2:55 p.m. and returned at 3:07. No damage was reported.

Fire broke out Saturday afternoon in a loading shed at the rear of the Times - News Building, 7 South Mechanic Street, but Central firemen extinguished flames after minor damage resulted.

East Side fire fighters were called to Riehl Avenue to extinguish a grass blaze Saturday night.

Weather

Sunday drivers were out in full force yesterday to take advantage of the near spring weather. Although the temperature did not rise above 62 in the city, the combination of sunny skies with little or no wind, and the smell of spring in the air, combined to make it one of the nicest days of the year. At Constitution Park, the thermometer registered a high of 57 and a low of 33 and was 50 at 8 p. m. Today promises to be almost as nice, with cloudy but mild weather promised.

REDS' RETREAT TURNED INTO ROUT

Senate Committee Chiefs Reveal Terms Of Proposed Substitute For Wherry Plan

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Sen. Connally (D-Tex) and Russell (D-Ga) proposed tonight the Senate approve additional ground troops for Europe subject to presidential check on other nations' contributions.

At the same time, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), who found this proposal unsatisfactory, announced he is drafting an amendment to delay troop transfer until other nations guarantee to fill their defense quotas.

Connally and Russell, who head the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees, respectively, made public the terms of a resolution they will seek to substitute for one proposed by Sen. Wherry (R-Neb).

Wherry has sought to bar the dispatch of any troops to augment the North Atlantic defense force until Congress passes on the policy involved.

Committee OK Expected

Adoption by the combined committees of the Connally-Russell resolution without substantial changes is expected late this week.

In their proposal, the two senators moved to put the Senate on record as saying "the threat to the security of the United States and our North Atlantic Treaty partners makes it necessary for the United States to station abroad such units of our armed forces as may be necessary and appropriate to contribute our fair share of the forces needed for the joint defense of the North Atlantic area."

The resolution would record the Senate as saying "the President should make certain that our North Atlantic Treaty partners are making contributions to the joint defense of Western Europe commensurate with their ability, geographic position and general economic condition."

The President would be asked to consult with the Secretary of Defense, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees of both houses and Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower before ordering troops abroad.

Sen. Taft To Testify

He also would be requested to report to Congress every six months on the implementation of the North Atlantic Treaty. The resolution also would approve Eisenhower's appointment as supreme commander in Europe.

Taft, who will testify tomorrow before the two committees, told reporters he has about given up the idea of seeking any percentage or numerical limitation on the number of troops to be sent to Europe.

Testimony by the Ohio Senator and Sen. Wherry, the Republican floor leader, will precede an appearance Tuesday by former President Herbert Hoover.

Reorganization Of VA Proposed; Red Tape Cited

One Contract Signed, Initialed 1,500 Times

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Robert L. Johnson, national chairman of the Citizens Committee for the Hoover Report, urged today "early and sweeping reorganization of the Veterans Administration from top to bottom."

Johnson, president of Temple University, Philadelphia, spoke out in connection with what he called a "strailing new example of VA red tape"—a reported requirement that one government contract with an institution for GI training had to be signed or initialed 1,500 times—900 times by one person.

Educator Complains

Johnson said he referred to a letter sent by Alvin C. Eurich, president of the University of the State of New York, to Veterans Administrator Carl R. Gray, Jr.

Eurich complained that on contracts covering only six of the university's 33 institutions, signatures or initials were required in more than a total of 2,200 places.

"On one contract alone, namely V3007V—at the Institute of Applied Arts and Sciences at Buffalo — a total of over 1,500 signatures or initials of the president of the university, secretary to the board of trustees, and director of the institute were required," Eurich's letter said. "By any reasonable and legal standard this is uterly absurd."

"Most Unusual" Cases

"There is no reason whatsoever why every change in a basic document which is appended to a contract, such as a college catalogue, should be initialed," he added.

A. H. Monk, director of VA training facilities service, said he has by letter assured Eurich that the cases cited were "most unusual."

Monk added that without implying any criticism of its officials, VA agrees any system requiring such excessive duplication of signatures needs looking into. He said VA will try to find more simplified procedures for such cases.

Dulles Optimistic On Return To D.C.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — John Foster Dulles returned from almost five weeks of Far Eastern conferences today expressing confidence "that the way has been paved for the reinforcement of peace, order and justice by positive and cooperative action in the Pacific island area."

This was taken as an optimistic report by Dulles on prospects for a possible Pacific pact, similar to the Atlantic pact, uniting Pacific nations against Communist aggression.

Secretary of State Acheson has said a Pacific pact is under discussion. Dulles, President Truman's special envoy on the trip, told reporters "we are in shape to go ahead promptly" with the drafting of a Japanese peace treaty.

Dulles said he would report quickly to President Truman and State Department officials.

Orla Hutt, Dewey's Father-In-Law, Dies

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 25 (AP)—Orla T. Hutt, 75, father-in-law of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, died today at the Governor's executive mansion following a heart attack.

Hutt was the father of Mrs. Dewey, the former Frances Eileen Hutt of Sapulpa, Okla., where her mother and father lived.

The Hutts had been visiting the Deweys since the Christmas holidays.

A spokesman for the Governor said Hutt for the past several years has been suffering from an asthmatic condition and hardening of the arteries.

Quadruplets Born In Baltimore

Quadruplets born to the wife of a Baltimore, Md., steel worker in Baltimore Saturday were reported doing fine yesterday. The quads, two boys (at right) and two girls are shown being held by Nurses Margarette Hillgren (left) and Laverne Resch at the Maryland General Hospital. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Pappas. Mrs. Pappas saw her quads for the first time yesterday. Three of the babies weigh more than four pounds and one boy tipped the nursery scales at a healty five pounds, five ounces.

USSR, Saying West Arming To Teeth, Indicates She Has Only 2,500,000 In Uniform

MOSCOW, Feb. 25 (AP) — Soviet Russia indicated today that if the Western Powers want to discuss who has the most guns she is more than ready to produce figures that it is they who are arming to the teeth.

From a long Russian note to Britain repeatedly accusing the British government of "slander," but expressing readiness to negotiate outstanding differences, observers picked out as the most important item the statement that the forces of the United States, Britain and France total more than 5,000,000 men and that Soviet forces are less than half that size.

Figures Don't Dovetail

This indication that Russia counts only about 2,500,000 men in her navy, air force and army was the nearest in several years that she has come to offering any figures.

It was noted here that this is far below figures on the Soviet army alone that have been published in the United States and the western world in general.

(The Senate Foreign Relations Committee on Feb. 14 published a report estimating the Russian army at 4,000,000 men in 175 divisions, and said her European satellites had 1,000,000 more, against a total of 4,500,000 for all 12 Atlantic pact nations. The report did not mention Communist China's strength, generally estimated at 3,000,000 or more men, or North Korea. The report did not include millions of Russian reservists with World War II experience.)

Conference Ammunition?

Russia said she had demobilized 33 age classes since the war, cutting her armed forces to their numerical strength before the beginning of the conflict in 1939. On the other hand, she declared, Britain, the United States and France have "several times" the number they had under arms in 1939.

From this, observers concluded that if a four-power council of foreign ministers is held to discuss the "existing level of armaments" in Europe as a cause of world tension, as suggested by the West, Russia will come armed with figures to uphold her point that it is the three Western Powers who are preparing for aggression.

Thief Rode High But Didn't Know It

DETROIT, Feb. 25, (AP)—A car thief didn't know it, but he was riding high—on $117,000 worth of American Express money orders.

The orders, convertible into cash, were stored in the trunk of a car stolen from Harvey Daniels, an American Express Company employe.

A nationwide alarm was sent out after the car theft was reported.

But the car was found today on a suburban parking lot, with the trunk unopened and the orders untouched.

DeGaulle Wants Yanks In Europe

BOURGES, France, Feb. 25 (AP) — Gen. Charles DeGaulle warned today that American refusal to send more troops to Europe would "condemn Europe to invasion."

Speaking to about 5,000 persons here on the 35th anniversary of the historic Battle of Verdun, DeGaulle said commitment of U. S. air and sea forces alone would not be sufficient to defend Western Europe against a Russian attack.

"Before the Soviets," he added, "the solidarity of the new and the old world is the rule of health for both. I would ask the Americans to have no illusions. If Europe is lost, what remains in Asia would meet the same fate. Africa would be untenable."

"Then," he asked, "what would become of the United States, alone against a vast array of hostile forces?"

DeGaulle, the leader of Free French forces in World War Two and political head of the powerful Rally of the French People (RPF), said that "in the camp of the free, two obstacles must be conquered—America's remoteness and the weakness of the French regime."

$1.6 Billions In Refunds

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Commissioner of Internal Revenue George J. Schoeneman said today his office expects this year to turn back to some 29,000,000 persons a total of nearly $1,600,000,000 in income tax refunds by June 15.

Head Of Di Giorgio Fruit Empire Dies

DI GIORGIO, Calif., Feb. 24 (AP)—Joseph Di Giorgio, 76, head of the agricultural empire bearing his name, died at his home here today.

Di Giorgio, who came to the United States from Sicily about 60 years ago, became one of the world's leading growers and shippers of fruits and, in recent years, vegetables.

His scattered Di Giorgio Fruit Corp. farms cover more than 20,000 acres, mostly in California and Florida. Principal farms include those at Arvin, Delano and Marysville, Calif.

Di Giorgio died of a heart attack.

Marshall Ailing

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25. (AP)—Secretary of Defense Marshall was unable to address a Red Cross gathering tonight because of a slight cold which had kept him from his office for a couple of days.

Cattleman, Trainman Shoot Each Other To Death In Duel

MINEOLA, Tex., Feb. 25 (AP) — A cattle dealer and a railroad conductor met in a hotel cafe and — standing only 10 feet apart—shot each other to death in a wild duel early today.

The dying cattleman, his six-shooter empty, crawled to the conductor, already dead, and slashed him with a long-bladed pocket knife.

The fight occurred at 3 a. m. with only a waitress, Mrs. Kate Womack, to see it.

Chief of Police Bill Knippol said the men had been enemies for some time but "I don't know just what the cause of the trouble was."

Knippol said Mrs. Womack told this story:

Rufus Browning, 55, the cattle dealer, went into the cafe for a cup of coffee. A few minutes later, Joe Henderson, 45, entered.

"Keep your hands right where they're at," said Henderson. "I'm going to kill you."

"I'm just going to drink my coffee," Browning said.

While he drank, Henderson cursed him.

Browning drained his cup and started backing toward the door.

Henderson took a 9 mm German pistol from behind his back and started shooting.

Browning whipped out a .38 caliber revolver and shot back.

Both men emptied their pistols. But Browning was hit only once, in the chest. Henderson was hit in the heart and in the stomach.

Five Iowans Die In Plane Crash

MACY, Neb., Feb. 25 (INS)—The bodies of five Iowans were recovered tonight from the wreckage of a twin-engined airplane that crashed in a rainsoaked cornfield on the Omaha Indian Reservation near Macy, Neb.

Bernard Case, operator of a farm near the crash scene, said authorities borrowed a team and wagon from him to haul the bodies out of the muddy field.

The victims were identified as Howard Campbell of the Sioux City, Ia., Flying Service, pilot; Roger Clark, Darrell Mousel and Bud Kisting, Army enlistees, and Marvin Engelking, a civilian pilot. The latter four were all from Moville, Ia.

Richard Wolf, manager of the Sioux City airport, said the plane had been chartered by Engelking for a flight from Columbia, Mo., to Sioux City.

The wreckage was spotted from the air shortly before dark tonight by two pilots from Sioux City who braved foggy, rainy skies to search for the plane which was due into Sioux City at 8:30 p. m. yesterday.

VIENNA, Austria, Feb. 25. (AP)—The number of Czech refugees trying to enter Austria has sharply increased in recent weeks, Austrian police authorities have disclosed.

Czech President Reveals Titoist Plot Uncovered

Blames Missing Clementis, Others

PRAGUE, Feb. 25 (AP)—President Klement Gottwald declared publicly today that the Communist Party has found within its ranks a five-year-old plot aimed at lining up Czechoslovakia with the West. He said it was engineered by the missing Vlado Clementis and others.

Gottwald assailed Clementis and the others as "traitors and conspirators." His statements bolstered belief that Clementis, former foreign minister under Gottwald, is under arrest. Previous reports has said that Clementis, who has not been seen since late in January, had fled to Yugoslavia or a haven in the west. But there has been no confirmation of his arrival.

Won't Be Second Yugoslavia

Gottwald said in a speech delivered Thursday to the Communist Central Committee and published today by the official party newspaper Rude Pravo:

"Czechoslovakia will not be a second Yugoslavia."

This was a reference to the ousting of Premier Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia from the group of Communist nations led by Russia. The Cominform did this in June, 1948, accusing Tito of enmity toward the Soviet Union and deviation from the true Marxist-Lenin line.

Some diplomats here have long suspected that "Titoism," the name given to Communist opposition to Kremlin dictation, has existed on a high level in the Czechoslovak Communist Party.

"Large Scale Conspiracy"

Gottwald said Clementis and the others had carried on a "large scale conspiracy" and acknowledged that "there was not enough vigilance inside the party." He urged doubting members:

"Believe in the party, comrade x x x in the end every one of these vagabonds is caught. Every one is caught and deserved punishment given."

Others named by Gottwald were Mrs. Marie Svermova, the party's former second deputy secretary-general, and Otto Sling, former political secretary for the Brno region. Mrs. Svermova, widow of the Communist war hero, Van Sverma, and Sling, have been removed from their party jobs and are reliably reported under arrest. Both were members of parliament and active in party organization work.

Soldier Held In Fatal Beating Of His Wife

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Master Sgt. Stanley Szary, 35, was held by police today after his badly-beaten wife was found dead in bed.

Police said Szary, stationed at Bolling Air Force Base since 1946, walked into a police station, said he had an argument with his wife, Wilma, last night after he had been drinking, and couldn't wake her up this morning.

The police went to their home and found her dead in bed. Still asleep were their three sons—Stanley, Jr., 4, William 2, and Nicholas, three months.

Tydings London-Bound

NEW YORK, Feb. 25. (AP)—Former Maryland Sen. Millard E. Tydings, a passenger aboard a London-bound plane which was forced back last night by pressurization trouble, took off again again today for London.

Johnston Seen Approving 10% Wage Formula

Some Concessions To Labor Are Made

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Eric Johnston probably will sign into effect the 10 per cent "catch-up" wage formula tomorrow or Tuesday "without very extensive changes," government officials said today. It would replace the Jan. 25 general wage freeze.

The Economic Stabilization Agency chief was reported "well along" toward agreement with labor on its demands for revisions of the pay pattern.

But the rift on the Wage Stabilization Board, whose three labor members quit in protest over the formula, remained unhealed. Johnston, it was indicated, has decided to go ahead with the order and leave this split for later treatment.

Some Concessions To Labor

Some concessions to labor's demands for a more liberal pay policy are being made, officials said privately. But they emphasized the changes "will not be great."

This made it seem likely that Johnston will approve a formula permitting pay boosts beyond 10 per cent, up to next June 30, if such changes were written into wage contracts prior to Jan. 25, date of the present wage freeze.

This would permit escalator clauses—such as "cost of living increases" and "annual wage improvement clauses"—in union contracts to take effect up until midyear, when the wage formula is scheduled for revision.

The original formula, as it reached Johnston from the wage board ten days ago, would permit such automatic boosts only if they did not bring the total increase beyond 10 per cent since Jan. 15, 1950.

IUE Threatens Strike

That limitation brought a strike threat yesterday by the CIO International Electrical Workers Union. It would cost IUE's 65,000 members in General Electric Corp. about one-third of a scheduled nine-cent "escalator" increase after March 15. CIO strikes in the auto industry also were feared.

There was no sign that the government has formed a plan to patch up the split wage board. When the three public and three industry members voted for the 10 per cent formula, the three labor members resigned. They had demanded 12 per cent.

On the other hand, the three industry members yesterday issued a statement protesting what they understand to be Johnston's plan for liberalizing the formula and—as they argue—heightening its inflationary effect.

Sen. Fulbright Says RFC 'Weak'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is "so weak, so eager to please" it would jump at almost any suggestion that it make a government loan.

And Sen. Capehart (R-Ind) urged that White House Aide Donald Dawson be called to answer questions by a Senate Banking subcommittee investigating the RFC. Capehart wants to know about President Truman's study of congressmen's correspondence with the RFC on loans.

The Banking subcommittee — Fulbright is its chairman — issued a report recently. It said three RFC directors had allowed themselves to be influenced on granting loans.

The report said that Dawson, who is Mr. Truman's aide, appeared to be one of those who exerted undue influence.

Mr. Truman called the report asinine.

Sing Sing Prison Escapee Nabbed In New York City

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. 25 (AP) — Sing Sing Prison had its second escape in nine years today, but the armed prisoner was captured without a fight later in New York City.

George H. Brooks, 21, a trusty, walked away from the residence of Warden Wilfred Denno outside the prison walls shortly before 2 p. m. (EST).

Later it was discovered that he had used an axe to break into a cabinet in the warden's home and steal two revolvers, and had held the warden's housekeeper at gunpoint while he stole clothing belonging to the warden's son.

Less than seven hours later he was nabbed by two New York City detectives on a street in Astoria, Queens, not far from his home. Though still carrying the two revolvers, he made no attempt to use them during his capture.

Ridgeway Holds Tight Check Rein On Eighth Army

Probably Could Reach 38th Parallel In Day

KOREAN FRONT, Feb. 25 (AP)—The U. S. Eighth Army probably could break loose and move up to the 38th parallel in 24 hours any day it chose to do so.

Allied military authorities believe armored columns could speed to the parallel with little or no opposition, bypassing groups of the enemy and avoiding strongly-held towns.

But Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway is holding a tight check rein on the army he commands. In the present tactical situation, it is not likely he will switch to the unrestrained, all-out tactics made famous by the late Gen. Patton in Europe.

Instead, he has chosen a safer policy of "limited offensive." Armored and infantry columns fan out into a relatively small portion of enemy territory, sweeping it clear of hostile troops. Then the rest of the Eighth Army organized for defense in depth, moves up and occupies the area.

It is a principal of mop-up and follow-through.

"I am not interested in real estate —just in killing the enemy," Ridgway has said.

These aims are reminiscent of Francis Marion, the Carolina swamp fox, who dealt the British misery during the Revolutionary War. Like Ridgway, Marion raided enemy towns or camps, delivered hard blows and then retired.

Unlike Marion, however, Ridgway follows up his raiding blows with occupying troops when the time is ripe.

An Eighth Army officer grinned and said:

"Gen. Ridgway is more interested in real estate than he lets on. After all, real estate is what you fight on and hide behind."

For example, during a recent hot engagement, a sergeant called to his men:

"God gave you those ditches—use em!"

Ditches are real estate.

An Eighth Army spokesman said soberly:

Scientist Says Saucers Not Research Balloons

SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 25. (AP)—A former Air Force scientist today brushed aside the idea that flying saucers are just balloons and urged a full investigation of what he said may be experiments by "a potential enemy of the United States."

Dr. Anthony O. Mirarchi, who was employed by the Air Force as an air chemist in its geophysical laboratory, took issue with a recent magazine article written by Dr. Urner Liddel, Navy scientist. Liddel said what people have been seeing are plastic balloons sent into the upper air for radiation research.

Allied Troops Repulse Four Enemy Attacks

U. N. Drive Mired; Reds Escape Trap

TOKYO, Feb. 26. (AP)—The Allied commander in Central Korea said today his troops have forced retreating Red forces into a "virtual rout" and have killed or wounded 64,000 since Jan. 4.

The statement came from Lt Gen. Edward M. Almond, Tenth Corps commander, as soupy mud on the thawing battleline and Red counterattacks slowed the U. N. drive northward.

A Red counterattack held back U. N. troops west of Hoensong Sunday, but elsewhere on the 60-mile central front thousands of Communists were fleeing to escape the Allies' "Operation Killer."

Almond and his field commanders conceded the North Korean Fifth Corps had pulled out to the north from the jaws of an envelopment intended to bottle up Reds in valleys southeast of Wonju.

The main Red counterattack west of Hoensong kept U. N. forces from reaching the highway between that road hub and Yongdu. Allied forces beat off three other counterblows.

Rain Aids Reds' Escape

Almond said his Tenth Corps ruined the effectiveness of two North Korean corps and knocked out most of two Chinese divisions at Chipyong before routing the North Korean Third and Fourth Corps north of Chechon.

Three days of rain and snow, he said, prevented his men from trapping Reds in the Hoengsong-Pyongsong-Pyongchang - Chechon triangle. Many escaped.

The estimated 14,000 escaping Reds were expected to make a stand north of Hoengsong. Air observers reported the enemy assembling in the vicinity of Hongchon in what appeared to be strong new defensive positions in depth.

Field dispatches said the Reds scented the growing Allied attack and began disengaging before tanks could roll up to snap shut the trap. Air support was hampered by overcast but planes struck widely at Red highway-borne supplies Sunday night and early today.

B-29s Fight Off Red Jets

Four B-29s fought off six to eight Red jet fighters Sunday over Suchon. An American gunner said he thought he hit one of the Russian-made MIG-15s with machine-gun fire. No B-29s was hit.

More enemy vehicles were spotted on North Korean roads Sunday night than on any other night in two weeks. It appeared the Chinese were preparing for a possible counter-offensive during the approaching bad weather when Allied planes may be grounded.

Chinese Reds hurled a column of grenade-tossing banzai-charging infantry at South Koreans attacking west of Hoengsong, a no-man's land 55 miles east of Seoul. Farther east, American forces repulsed three other Red attacks.

Forward American elements were operating completely out of ground contact with their rear echelons. Flooded streams and muddy roads, caused by rain and a pre-spring thaw, bogged down truck convoys, and supplies.

On a hurry-up call, the Far East Air Force's big C119 Fairchild "Flying Boxcar" transports airlifted 915 tons of supplies from Japan to Korea.

Of this amount, a record total of 340 tons of ammunition, food and medicine was dropped directly to front line units.

A fighting marine was assigned as temporary commander of the Eighth Army's Ninth Corps in place of Maj. Gen. Bryant E. Moore who died Saturday following a helicopter crash.

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Smith, commander of the First Marine Division, was given command of the corps, which includes two American divisions, a British Commonwealth brigade and South Korean troops.

Turkey Seeks U. S. Aid With Refugee Problem

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — Turkey is negotiating for American help in dealing with the problem raised by the continuing influx of Turkish refugees expelled from Communist-run Bulgaria.

More than 100,000 have been thrust across the border in recent months, and Bulgaria has proclaimed intention of expelling ultimately the rest of the 800,000 or so Turkish population because of their lack of enthusiasm for Communism.

Diplomats said today the Turkish government has appealed to the U. S. for an increase in Marshall Plan aid to provide for prefabricated housing, cement, tools and other needs in coping with the knotty resettlement problem. Turkey also is seeking the services of American resettlement experts.

Father Rescues Boy Swept Through Sewer Into River

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — A small boy fell into an open manhole today, was swept through a 100-foot drainpipe into the East River, and was rescued by his 51-year-old father — who said he couldn't swim.

The father, Martin Bygne, said he had been walking with the boy, Bruce, 6, and turned his head to say hello to someone.

When he turned back, the boy had disappeared.

Looking down the manhole, he saw Bruce being pulled into the pipe by the rush of water.

He climbed down, but was unable to catch the boy before the current carried him through the pipe and out into the river.

Byrne waded through the three feet of water in the drainpipe and plunged from its opening in a retaining wall into the river.

Somehow he reached the boy and towed him back to the opening.

He carried his son back through the pipe to the manhole, where bystanders pulled them out.

At Bellevue Hospital, where the father sat shivering in a blanket while the boy was treated for submersion, Byrne exclaimed:

"It was a miracle of God! I don't know how to swim."

The Old Second Guesser

By JOHN N. WHEELER

Behind The Scenes In A Hospital

IT WAS 10 o'clock at night, and I was riding to Roosevelt Hospital in an ambulance, the first time I had ever come into one through the customers' entrance.

"You're all right, John," said Dr. Traeger.

"If I am," I asked hoarsely, "why the hell am I in an ambulance on the way to Roosevelt Hospital at this time of night?"

Although is was six years ago, that one has not yet been answered. They dumped me into the X-ray gallery, took many pictures of my insides in various poses, gave me the biggest shot of penicillin up to then tried on a patient in the joint, and lugged me upstairs to a private room. I heard the doctor say to my wife,

"He's got plenty of pneumonia."

The next morning I was purple and could just about breathe between spasms of coughing, when I looked toward the door and saw a lady in a nurse's costume, who somewhat resembled Madeleine Carroll only better looking, enter. Sick as I was, I did a double take, and was pretty sure I had died and gone to heaven.

"How did I get you? Where did you come from and what's your name?" I whispered.

"I was on call, and they sent me up here. My name's Mary Mohanco," she answered.

She told me later when I was better and walking around, the clerk in the office downstairs said there was an old guy up in Room 509 pretty near dead, and asked her if she wanted to take the case. She did and went to work on me, introducing me to a lot of hospital gadgets I had never seen before. It was the old Wheeler luck to get such a nurse and pneumonia just two weeks after penicillin had been released for civilian use.

Having a hospital bed bath was a new experience, and not an unpleasant one, but, as all veterans know, there comes a time in the plot when the lady in white hands you the wash cloth and says quietly,

"Now finish your bath." She usually leaves the room.

At first I was a little puzzled about this procedure, although I soon caught on. Miss Mohanco told me about a man patient she once had who was a freshman, too. She gave him the usual instructions and departed. In about five minutes, she returned and found him shampooing his hair. She also used to give me a bootleg shave, but put on the red light outside the door, meaning "don't disturb the patient," so the regular barber would not find out.

Toward the end of my stay it was fun, because I was permitted to roam the halls with my faithful friend, and once borrowed an interne's white coat and hung a stethoscope around my neck. A lady asked me to take her temperature and feel her pulse, discussing freely her symptoms. She was there for a nervous disorder, I found. If she had known about me, her condition would probably have deteriorated, but no one told her.

Naturally, being a reporter, I got in on all the gossip of the place, and there seemed to be plenty to talk about. I met a smiling Irish nurse about 50 who was the only one who could handle a certain very important political boss when he went on a bender. He would curse and try to get out of the hospital. She would swear just as hard and had a better punch, because she was sober. If he would try to scramble out of bed, she would say,

"Get back in there, you big Irish bum," and then let him have one she started from her heels.

When he was off the stuff, these two were fast friends.

The classic is the story about the Duke of Windsor when the Duchess stepped in to have her appendix removed, and he took an adjoining room to be near "the woman I love." As is well known, the bathrooms attached are working cubicles for utilitarian purposes and furnished on the theory the occupants are bedridden. (For those vigorous enough to get up, there is a walk down the hall.) Fastened to a long hose is a nozzle which is intended to clean utensils employed in caring for the sick.

The Duke arose the first morning to take his bath, and was puzzled by the fittings, but thought it was a novel American idea, so turned the water on and sprayed himself plentifully. It ran under the door out into his room and dribbled down the corridor before the flood could be investigated, and the royal gentleman told where the walking bath was located.

Sir William Osler, the celebrated English physician, is quoted as having said,

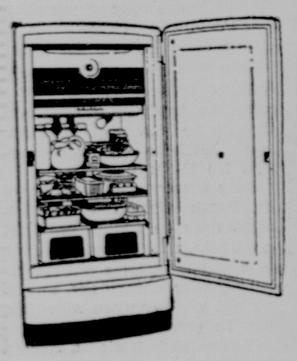

"Good nursing is more important than a good doctor."

I agree. That's why I am able to write this piece now.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By SHEPARD BARCLAY

AN UNNATURAL FINESSE

USUALLY you will see a declarer, who is able to finesse in either direction against a missing queen, lead from his shorter holding toward the longer one. That is usually called a "natural" finesse. An "unnatural" finesse is one whereby the lead is from the longer holding toward the shorter, such as leading the jack from five cards headed by the K-J-10 toward the A-6. That is virtually obligatory for a No Trump game declarer if he can afford to lose the finesse to the defender who plays after the A-6, but not to the other one, especially if enough other tricks are available to him after the finesse.

	♠ 10 7 ♥ K 8 4 ♦ K J 10 7 3 ♣ A K 2
♠ A Q 8 6 3 2 ♥ J 7 5 ♦ 8 2 ♣ 10 8	N W E S	♠ 9 4 ♥ 10 9 3 2 ♦ Q 9 5 4 ♣ Q 7 5
	♠ K J 5 ♥ A Q 6 ♦ A 6 ♣ J 9 6 4 3

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♦	Pass
1 NT	Pass	3 NT

South analyzed his problem clearly, after dummy's 10 held the first trick on the lead of the spade 6. He saw that the one real danger to his contract was letting East win a trick of any kind and then lead through his remaining K-J toward West's marked spade honors. He could well afford to let West win, however, as in that event a second spade lead would come from his left up to the guarded king.

Besides that, he counted up the number of his sure winners in other suits, finding three in hearts, two in clubs and the one already scored in spades. That made six, and by finessing diamonds toward West, he would be sure to get the needed three additional tricks in the suit, no matter who held the Q.

So to the second trick he led the diamond J and, as East played low, put on the 6. Now he laid down the diamond A, returned to dummy and laid down the diamond K, hoping it would find the Q and 9 divided. When that proved not to be the case, he merely thanked his lucky stars for having finessed as he did, then ran his other high cards to have exactly nine tricks. He threw the rest of the hand in, conceding four tricks to the defense.

Tomorrow's Problem

Your manner at the table, not which fork you use, is what marks you as a real charmer!

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

MORE IMPORTANT to possess than table manners is a manner at the table. Uninitiated youngsters going to their first formal are sometimes wary about an array of silver, but reference to a good etiquette book and just a little beforehand practice will quickly dispel any uneasiness over which fork to use.

A truly charming manner at the table cannot be acquired so easily, although I have seen many a slip of a lass grace a company dinner in the most polished fashion. When I see a sixteen-year old with such winning ways, I am almost certain that she has been accustomed to a prettily and correctly set table every day. Table poise and charm are the result of daily cultivation.

Faults Frequently Observed

An attractive table manner cannot be described by a set of rules. Detractions from it can be witnessed any day in restaurants. Here are just a few of those I note far too frequently. Tick them off and see how they tally with your observations:

1. Behaving as though a meal were a contest against time. The dinner hour especially should be a social event and a time for relaxation.

2. Eyes that rove and table-hop instead of concentrating on their dinner companion. It is inexcusable rudeness.

3. Yakity-yak, or dead silence. A gracious table manner includes the best of the art of conversation. The dinner hour is an excellent time for an exchange of ideas and events of the day.

4. Bringing troubles to the table instead of pleasures. This can only result in unhappiness and indigestion for all.

5. Arguing. Result: Loss of charm and the currying of ulcers.

More Thoughtless Offenders

6. Making a dressing table out of the dinner table.

7. Any kind of thoughtlessness—being too choosy over a table; too slow over selecting from a menu; loud and unreasonable in complaints; or so loud in conversation that others wish they could turn you off as easily as a blatting radio. And, of course, any rudeness to those who serve you.

Always be conscious of others' points of view, and you'll never need to worry about your manner!

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

Most famous Pierre Du Pont legend concerns the day he invited a honeymoon couple to view his priceless collection of Chinese art. Awaiting the arrival of the host, the young bride picked up a small vase to examine it more closely, then gasped with dismay as it slipped from her hands and shattered into a thousand pieces on the stone floor.

At this precise moment, Pierre Du Pont came pattering along. "Oh, Mr. Du Pont," wailed the bride, "I've smashed the little vase that stood in the little niche here." Mr. Du Pont looked at the niche indicated, gave the bride a reassuring pat on the back, announced, "Don't worry that pretty little head of yours; the vase was one of the least important in my collection"—and fainted dead away.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS).

AT THE Versailles Restaurant the other night John Wayne and his wife were having dinner with Herbert Yates, his boss, and a few other friends, when a fellow walked up to him, stuck out a bit of paper and said, "Autograph this, if you can write."

Wayne, a product of the University of Southern California and a somewhat rougher school which might be called John Ford U., smiled up at the stew and said sure. He signed his name.

"Look, a writing actor," the guy, a real card, called to his nearby table. Big laugh.

"You want me to sign it to anybody in particular," Wayne asked amiably. (He could have, of course, destroyed the tormentor with the back of his enormous hand.)

The fellow quieted down a bit and then said, "Yeah, as a matter of fact. My kid likes you."

"Gee, that's fine," Wayne said. "What's his name? Jimmy? Sure." And he put on a special little salutation to Jimmy.

"Thanks," Wayne said and handed the paper back to the man. "Give my best to Jimmy."

The man mumbled his thanks and disappeared.

• — • — •

None of the above comes under the head of earthquaking news. But it does tell a little about the trials and tribulations of great popular fame, and it does tell a little about Wayne—the new box office champion from Hollywood.

I tagged along with Wayne during the Republic star's short visit in New York (he's now in London) and, though I don't marvel too easily, marvelled at the manner of the 6-foot-4 unadulterated man.

Wayne has about as little ham in him as any actor who ever lived. He had no drum-beaters out in front of him as he moved from place to place like any average well-heeled tourist. He wanted no special tables, and when he couldn't get a couple of seats to "Guys and Dolls" he just shrugged and said, "What the hell, if there's no seats... no seats."

Wayne's iron but friendly kisser was seen last year by more Americans than, in all probability, had ever seen anybody's face of a similar stretch of time. His pictures played to an estimated 150,000,000 to 200,000,000 customers in this country alone, and his ancient ones filled TV screens with almost the consistency of Hopalong.

He holds one distinction that must be unique in Hollywood. He became the screen's leading attraction during a year in which he did not make a single picture.

On the day his memorable "Sands of Iwo Jima" (made in 1949) opened in San Francisco five of his old pictures began re-issue runs on the same street. His incomparable "Stagecoach," which he believes is the best thing he ever did, was a TV perennial.

Wayne's trip to the top was marked by the hard work you would expect of a face and a mind and a body like that. It all started one afternoon on the Fox lot, where he worked as a property man during vacations from the university. He was a tackle on the football squad and liked to practice his crouch and charge.

One day, while doing this, his feet were kicked from under him and he was knocked over backwards with a resounding wallop.

"Keep your eyes open, son," said the gruff gentleman who had dumped him. It was John Ford, one of the immortal directors, and every bit as rough and ready as anyone who worked for him. Ford took a liking to Wayne, included him on a trip to Annapolis to make a forgotten picture named "Salute" and gave him a small part.

They've had their ups and downs since, mainly ups like "Stagecoach," "The Long Voyage Home," "They Were Expendable," "Fort Apache," "She Wore A Yellow Ribbon," etc. And are inseparable friends.

Wayne's blunt attacks on Communism in and out of Hollywood, during his recent tenure as president of the Motion Picture Alliance are models of succinct phrasing and gutty approach. And it was a pleasure to watch him handle the crowds—some sincere, some abusive—who stormed him during his trip to the big town. Hollywood would have nothing to fear from Congress if it produced more gents like this one.

Board Considers Proposals For Streamlining Elections

Several proposals to streamline the system of conducting primary and general elections and registering new voters are under consideration by the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors and Board of County Commissioners.

At a meeting of the two bodies recently they explored various methods of eliminating some of the apparent defects in the current system.

Patrick J. King, clerk to the election supervisors for the past eight years, outlined some of the methods which could be used to modernize the program.

King suggests 12 new polling places, which would provide 90 places to vote in this county. Some of the present polling places have more than 1,000 voters on the poll books. Under the new plan, these larger precincts would be divided into two segments.

Instead of 1,000 or more persons voting at one polling place, they would be divided into alphabetical lists from A to J and from K to Z as is done in some of the precincts. Under this program there would be no polling place with more than 500 to 600 names.

Instead of paying poll workers on the present basis of overtime, they would be reimbursed at a flat rate of $22 for their time and effort. This is an average of $4 per day more than now received, even with overtime.

This would result in speeding up the counting of ballots and also would give the poll workers a little more money for their work.

Another modernization move would be a program of permanent registration.

Two persons would be employed at an annual salary of about $2,500 and they would sit at the Court House here to register any new eligible voters. On certain days they would visit various parts of the county to register new voters in those areas.

A card file system would be used to keep this permanent style registration. The saving by this method over a period of years would be extensive. It would cut out the present method of having each polling place manned by registrars on days just prior to primary and general elections and would also eliminate revision days. King estimates a saving to the county over a two-year period of $14,000.

These provisions are endorsed by members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, which has conferred with King and members of the Board of Election Supervisors.

The commissioners cite the following reasons for their approval.

It will save the county money.

Be convenient for new voters to register.

Speed up the tally of votes in both primary and general elections.

To the early Teutons, the wedding ring was a sign that the bride had been sold by her father or guardian to the bridegroom.

PTA Board Meets Tonight

Plans will be made for the leadership training institute which will be held in Cumberland the first week of April.

Treasury Vs. Federal Reserve

The Federal Reserve Board of Governors in insisting on its duty and its authority to control the whole volume of credit in the present emergency has run afoul of the Treasury's position on how much to pay for carrying the U. S. public debt. Last month Secretary Snyder announced his intention of maintaining the present low interest rates on government obligations—averaging 2-1/3 per cent on Treasury bonds.

Snyder expressed confidence that much of this year's maturing debt of $39 billion could be replaced with non-bank investors. Raising the average rate on outstanding Treasury obligations by half of one per cent would cost, he said, an additional $1½ billion in carrying charges. But to maintain the stability of government securities at the present low interest rates, the Federal Reserve system has had to become a purchaser of them in the open market at what thus becomes a guaranteed price.

Banks can achieve additional reserves on which to base new private loans by selling some of their holdings of government securities to the Federal Reserve system. The Treasury's "easy-money" policy, in the opinion of Marriner S. Eccles, Federal Reserve Board member and former chairman, makes the Federal Reserve system an "engine of inflation." Eccles argues, for one thing, that higher prices cost the government in its huge purchasing program more than it would have to pay out as a result of higher interest rates on the public debt.

The Federal Reserve system by tradition is supposed to be independent of the White House and of political pressures. Board members are appointed to 14-year terms by the President and confirmed by the Senate, and are removable only for cause. The late Sen. Glass, "father of the Federal Reserve system," once quoted President Wilson as declaring, "The very moment I should attempt to establish close relations with the Board, . . I would be accused of trying to bring political pressure to bear."

When President Truman, in 1948, failed to reappoint Eccles as chairman of the board, the move was widely interpreted as reducing the influence of the board chairman in the whole banking community. And Dr. G. L. Bach, in his study of the Federal Reserve system, has found the board, in general, subservient to the Treasury. "Federal Reserve policy," Dr. Bach writes, "has reflected keen awareness of the executive leadership of the President and the key role played by the Treasury in government financial affairs."

Congress set up the Federal Reserve system in 1913 to "furnish an elastic currency, to afford means of rediscounting commercial paper, to establish a more effective supervision of banking in the United States." The stock of the 12 Federal Reserve banks then created is owned by the member commercial banks, so that the Federal Reserve system is technically privately owned and privately supported. Operating expenses of the Reserve banks and of the Board are met by earnings which arise largely from interest on government securities and on funds advanced to member banks. After expenses and payment of a fixed six per cent dividend on stock, the Reserve banks pay into the Treasury approximately 90 per cent of net earnings.

The Banking Act of 1935 reaffirmed the independence of the system by removing from the board the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency, who theretofore had served as ex-officio members.

Developments of deeper concern to the American people have been following each other so rapidly, the general inclination now seems to be to follow Truman's lead and just assume Margaret can sing.

Fear Or Bravado?

The Western world is still confused by Dictator Stalin's latest "interview"—and this is not surprising. Some of his statements may be read this way or that.

War, for instance, is not inevitable "at the present time." But that was last week. The world must accept Russia's terms or the United Nations will collapse. But those terms refer to China and not to the Soviet.

The most insipid remark of all is to the effect that Russia cannot be rearming because it is spending so much money in other directions.

Perhaps it is a case of wishful thinking, but many persons get the impression that Stalin is talking slightly out of fear. Certainly he has reason to be concerned. Matters in the satellite states are not going so well as they were and there are hints of disaffection in the Soviet Union.

The campaign to drive a wedge into the Western states has obviously resulted in failure. Most of the free world's statesmen see through Russia's game and are determined to put an end to it.

It is perhaps further indication of a disturbed mind that Stalin himself has now entered the list of propagandists. He has, of course, spoken before, but for the most part he has left it to his aides to do the dirty work of attacking the free world.

That he feels the time has come for the master to take a hand may not be without significance.

Now that it has been revealed Armstrong County, South Dakota—population 52— has no federal employes, at least seven residents of the county can look forward to receipt of offers from Washington.

Glare Is Dangerous

Headlight glare remains one of the worst highway hazards, according to safety officials, who continue to warn drivers their own safety, as well as the safety of others, demands use of the ower beam when approaching opposing traffic on neighborhood streets or the open road.

Complaints of motorists in recent months indicate there is a growing carelessness on the part of vehicle operators in the matter of headlight use.

Blinding glare from upper beam lights assails drivers everywhere, making it impossible to see pedestrians in the streets or along highways and making it extremely difficult to keep to the road.

Refusal to change to the lower beam after an approaching driver has done so is an indication of unfitness to be at the wheel of a car. Every driver should understand the vital relationship between visibility and highway safety.

Most states require use of the lower beam when there is approaching traffic, but enforcement is difficult. The matter really is in the hands of the individual driver, who can contribute to the safety of night driving by showing consideration for his fellows.

Economists are looking forward to a national income of $300 billion. Or $50 billion in real money.

Food From Sawdust

AMERICAN FARMERS continue to produce surpluses but research workers have not ceased looking for new foods. The problem has assumed greater importance than in the past because undernourishment in certain parts of the world presents a challenge, or even a threat, to our way of life. The search for additional sources of food involves not only a study of agriculture, forestry, soil, fisheries, production, and processing but also research by veterinarians and the medical profession.

Favorite sources of study are the waste materials from various undertakings along this line is the attempt to convert wastes from sawmills and wood pulp mills and discarded portions of agricultural crops into digestive sugars, proteins, and fats. These products are useless at the present time and have little or no food value but it is estimated that a ton of sugar rich molasses could be made from a ton of waste wood. This molasses is palatable to cattle but not to humans because it is too bitter. Furthermore, it is possible to obtain a protein live stock feed high in vitamins by growing yeasts and molds on wood molasses. These yeasts compare favorably with baker's and brewer's yeast.

The oceans also are said to contain a wealth of food in addition to the commonly used fish; even in fresh water, great masses of tiny creatures which could be cultivated as nutriment live in abundance. In addition, there is a deep scattered layer at the bottom of the ocean still unexplored and unexploited, that may contain enough food to help the inhabitants of areas where there is not enough to eat. This thought is more than theoretical. In World War II echo sounding instruments discovered a layer of "something" between the surface and the bottom and it is likely that this consists of masses of living organisms with potential food value.

Research also aims to increase the existing food supply. New hybrid plants could boost the vital output of farmers everywhere, not only in the American corn and wheat belts but in Chinese rice paddies and tropical sugar cane plantations. Improving the land thru fertilization is efficacious and it may be possible to boost the fishing industry thru research along this line. Another problem that will offer handsome rewards is the elimination of pests, such as locusts and grasshoppers that kill our growing crops. By eliminating disease in cattle we not only conserve live stock but eliminate a source of disease transmission to humans.

The addition of antibiotics to animal feed is an excellent example of what strange things happen when a little ingenuity is used. Penicillin, aureomycin, terramycin, and chloromycetin suppress organisms that might retard the growth of animals. The antibiotics also may encourage the growth of more helpful germs that were held in abeyance by the harmful species. Most farm animals live in environments where organisms thrive and are in contact with them day after day. However, soil must not be underrated; in many areas it is high in vitamin B12, currently popular as the growth vitamin. When soil is fed to pigs, growth and health tend to improve. It has been said that there is as much of this vitamin in suburban New York soil as there is in milk.

DON'T BLAME TEETHING

Mrs. H. writes: Can teething cause convulsions in children?

REPLY

No. Teething is blamed unnecessarily for many childhood ailments, including convulsions. Teething can make the child irritable and interfere with sleep and digestion but beyond that there is no logical reason why it should cause other manifestations.

HERNIA AND HEART

C. W. writes: Does a hernia interfere with the heart action or retard the flow of blood to the heart?

REPLY

The more common type of hernias, such as inguinal, femoral, and umbilical, have no effect upon the circulation. On the other hand, a large diaphragmatic hernia could conceivably disturb heart action. Changes in the electrocardiogram, traceable to this form of hernia, have been demonstrated and now and then symptoms are difficult to differentiate from angina pectoris.

Government To Control Scarce Metals; This Column Will Answer G. I.s' Questions; Senators Have Affidavits On "Job-Selling" Scandal.

Says DREW PEARSON

Washington — Mobilization Boss Charles Wilson will assume drastic powers over aluminum, copper and steel, beginning the middle of June. He will put these strategic metals under a controlled material plan, which will give the government authority to regulate their use down to the last pound.

Wilson spelled out his plan behind closed doors to the Joint Congressional Committee on Defense Production.

"The controlled materials plan is one that will operate on scarce materials absolutely," the mobilization boss explained. "I mean, it will have the control of all the material in the particular line that is short."

However, Wilson added ruefully: "Once you start to control things, it is a terrific job. That is why I hate controls, and from the very bottom of my heart I hate controls."

The reason for this drastic control plan, Wilson said, was the dangerously short supply of aluminum, copper and steel in the face of the tremendous armament program.

He warned that the steel shortage will be the most critical, but that the copper and aluminum picture is not so gloomy. For example, he reported: "We will continue to have an aluminum shortage for this current year of maybe as much as 180,000 or 190,000 tons . . . but by 1953, when these American plants of ours come in and begin to produce, we will have a plusage of aluminum, not much, maybe 50,000 tons in 1953."

"Does that mean that, in 1953, aluminum will be in reasonably good supply for civilian use as well as military?" asked Utah's GOP Sen. Wallace Bennett.

"Yes sir," smiled Wilson.

G. I. Gripes

Letters pour in to this column every day from G. I.'s, exercising their time-honored American privilege to kick. It is impossible to investigate all their complaints, but from time to time, this column will publish the most serious G. I. gripes and try to give them a straight steer. Names will be withheld upon request.

A DRAFTEE, Ft. Story, Va.—"There are 500 of us at Ft. Story who haven't been home since we were drafted. Now we are supposed to be shipped overseas. We were promised ten days leave, but this has been cut to three days. This isn't even enough time to go home and tell our folks goodbye."

ANS.—Investigation reveals that several camps have cut furloughs in order to complete training schedules and still meet shipping schedules. However, this column protested to the Army which promised to send a directive to all camps, ordering at least a seven-day furlough for every G. I. before he is shipped overseas.

CAPT. ROGER C. WHITE JR., Somewhere in Korea—"I wish the people of the U. S. could see the horror of war as exhibited in Korea. Hundreds of men, women and children are dying daily from lack of food and the intense cold. Is there no way to aid them?"

ANS.—"CARE" is now rushing food and clothing to Korean refugees.

A SERGEANT, Camp Stoneman, Calif.—"Whatever happened to the much-publicized point system announced last fall, under which enlisted reservists with sufficient points would not be sent overseas?"

ANS. — The point system was hastily abandoned November 7, 1950, less than two weeks after it was adopted. An Army spokesman explained it was scrapped because of Chinese intervention in Korea. Reminded that the Chinese didn't intervene until late November, he consulted his superiors and came back with the story that the critical military situation had caused the plan to be dropped. However, it was pointed out that the military situation was more critical on October 28 when the point system was announced than on November 7 when it was dropped. The Army had no further alibis.

ELMER HENCY, SR., Oran, Mo. —"Can't anything be done to help my three boys in uniform? They sacrificed high civilian wages to serve Uncle Sam, but they have to pay income taxes even on their small Army incomes."

ANS. — Enlisted men in combat zones are exempt from paying income taxes. If they are stationed in noncombat areas, however, they must pay taxes the same as civilians. Meanwhile, several bills have been introduced in Congress to exempt all enlisted men from paying income taxes. The best thing you can do is write to the House Ways and Means Committee, urging tax relief for all G.I.'s.

A PARATROOPER, Ft. Campbell, Ky.—"We have been ordered to sign forms that we 'may not own, or maintain, or operate a motor vehicle that is not registered at Ft. Campbell.' I have a car in my name, but it is being driven by my wife at home. If this form is legal, then what is to stop the Army from telling me that I should sell my home or divorce my wife and send my children to an orphanage?"

ANS.—This form was issued in the hope of reducing accidents around Ft. Campbell. The only legal grounds for it is the authority of the Army to maintain safety at its installations. The Army cannot take away your automobile, and probably won't try.

"Job-Selling" Scandal

Here is the inside story on the Mississippi "job-selling" scandal. Mississippi's two senators have affidavits from 20 rural mail carriers, postmasters and contractors who say they were charged as high as $1,500 for jobs and favors. The senators' constituents claim to have been approached by representatives of the so-called Truman faction of the Democratic party.

Jobs were sold at the following prices: $1,500 for rural mail carrier, a position not requiring Senate confirmation; $300 to $400 for acting postmaster (this payment is small, since postmasters must be confirmed by the Senate); $300 for county director of price stabilization.

Contractors also paid $200 to be placed on a nonexistent eligible list for war contracts. A Columbus, Miss., contractor reported that he was warned his name would be put on a blacklist if he did not pay the fee.

NOTE—The Truman faction of the Democratic party in Mississippi is headed by Clarence Hood, acting national committeeman.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

Battling Wilson

WASHINGTON

"THEY'RE ALL acting like pigs." These are the bitter words of a disgusted mobilization official who has watched with dismay the scramble for special privilege which is going on as mobilization gets under way. This vast collective insult was of course an exaggeration. But it is enough to suggest why mobilization chief Charles E. Wilson's much-publicized battle with organized labor is only a prelude to further battles with agriculture and business.

The significant thing about the row with labor is that all the issues ostensibly in dispute are essentially fake issues. Sensible labor leaders agree in private that the proposed 10 per cent wage rise limit—which is actually greater than the increase in the cost of living — is not really so outrageous as they make out in public.

They also privately agree that Secretary of Labor Maurice Tobin has no real business running the whole manpower requirements of the nation, including such matters as military deferments and inductions; and moreover that Tobin himself is something less than a genius. As for the third ostensible issue, the appointment of a labor official on Wilson's staff, Wilson offered this concession long ago. He has now renewed the offer, in a notably conciliatory reply to the letter in which the labor leaders virtually called him a liar. So this can hardly be rated a real issue either.

Real Issues Deeper

The real issues go deeper. For one thing, labor feels that President Truman has not paid off for labor support in 1948. When they talk of Truman, the labor men sound rather like Lear—"How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child." There are other complications, like jealousy of John L. Lewis. But the basic motivation of the labor revolt is very simple. The labor men are convinced that business and agriculture have jostled into a favored position at the mobilization trough, and labor wants to get its share while the getting is good.

The fact is that business and the farmers have by and large been no more eager than labor to accept anything smacking of sacrifice, in the national interest. Wilson is perfectly aware of this, which is why his battle with labor is only a first round. The second round, this time with agriculture, has in fact already started within the Administration, and it will soon be fought out on the public stage of Congress.

The powerful farm organizations have taken the stand that the parity formula is sacrosanct, and that they will fight to the last ditch against any attempt to amend the mobilization law to permit control of any food prices below parity. This means, according to the estimates of Wilson's staff, that food prices will climb an average five per cent before they can be controlled. This in turn will reinforce demands for higher wages, to the point where the process of spiralling prices might get wholly out of hand. Wilson is determined that this shall not happen.

More Battles In Prospect

He therefore proposes to go to Congress very soon and demand authority to control certain food prices below parity. Inevitably, Agriculture Secretary Charles Brannan is fighting this proposal. It is likely that President Truman will support Wilson in the end, and that Wilson will therefore soon be involved in another unholy row, this time with the farm organizations and the Congressional farm bloc.

As for business, Wilson and his chief aids, despite their reputation as conservatives, have been looking

Only Spiritual Awakening Can Prevent Another War

By ROGER W. BABSON

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 25 — Only a spiritual world awakening can prevent another world war sometime. Wars appear to be one of God's ways of bringing people to their knees. There, however, is no need for another world war now.

Neither U. S. Nor Russia Ready

The basic reason why no world war is probable this year is that all nations are waiting to learn what atomic bombs can do to ground troops.

To answer this question is the reason for the Nevada atomic experiments of the past few weeks. The Korean war has shown that ordinary bombs, dropped from the air, has not succeeded in destroying ground troops. The infantry no longer marches in concentrated ranks as they used to do. Now they are so spread out that the individual soldiers are 50 or more feet apart.

For nine months of the year our bombers have been useful in destroying bridges and smashing supply lines. During the remaining three months, after the rivers froze, these bridges and highways were no longer necessary and the bombers were greatly handicapped. This explains why the Chinese armies awaited until the rivers froze up before they attacked. This further explains one reason why our military experts do not expect Russia to attempt overrunning Europe before October or November, if then. The other reason is that Russia wants to gather her much needed crops from Bulgaria, Rumania, Poland and Czechoslovakia before war begins. But the real reason Stalin has delayed an attack on Europe is his fear of what the new form of atomic bombs could do to masses of foot soldiers and tanks.

World Oil Situation

Irrespective of the bomb, the United Nations could delay a world war for many years if it would only use its great organization (10,000 employes and annual expense of $40,000,000) for constructive work. Today these delegates are wasting their time on foolish arguments. They should be ashamed of themselves. Let me give one of the many possible illustrations of what I mean.

Nearly all the top brass are agreed that Russia's first attack will be against Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece, to get the oil fields of Iran and neutralize Italy and France. Here are the powder kegs which could destroy the world. Yet, it must seem terribly wicked to God to see his people go to war over the fair distribution of oil which He has freely given to all. People who own and develop oil land are entitled to receive fair compensation for their risk and expenses; but God will not forgive the hogging of this precious oil against the welfare of mankind. It truly seems as if the entire world is crazy not to insist now on a fair distribution of this oil to all nations, including Russia. For no one leading such a movement, it seems as if the United Nations is the "international insane asylum" of our world.

Causes Of War Differ

There are many causes of war. God made people different and made nations different. Some are black, others are white; some are lazy, others are industrious; some are intelligent and others are ignorant. Nations also differ as to climate, rivers, harbors, and other resources. It would take a century to equalize many of these differences. The world's oil, however, which is needed everywhere by every nation, could be fairly distributed by the United Nations.

Until every nation — including Russia and China — has a fair quantity of oil, we must expect another world war. As God "sends his rain on the just and unjust," so the United Nations should send the oil to Iran to every other nation instead of cowardly sitting by and making speeches.

What The UN Should Do

The United Nations should stop calling each other names like silly children. The delegates should realize that God gave the world the great oil fields. The delegates should insist that Iran should have a just recompense and not be scared by bribes, threats or intrigue, whether in England, Russia or the United States. The United Nations should further insist on a fair distribution of this oil and have all nations recognize that they need not resort to war to keep from being shut off from these God given resources. This is an illustration of what the United Nations should plan and fight for. Have we "Christian" nations forgotten the Four Freedoms to which Churchill and Roosevelt agreed when World War II was going against them?

These Days By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

What War Can Cost

THE 1952 BUDGET, which may or may not be passed as is, amounts to $71,594,000,000. That compares with the 1951 budget of $47,210,000,000. Receipts for 1951 were estimated at $44,512,000,000; for 1952 at $55,138,000,000. That means that the government will run short about $16,456,000,000, which will have to be added to the national debt.

Of the $71,594,000,000 which the government plans to expend in 1952, $41,421,000,000 will be expended by the military services.

The President is employing the double budget method, which means that he adds to the budget separate appropriations, loan and contract authorizations part of which will be spent in 1952 and part in subsequent years. These bring the amount up to $94,400,000,000, to which is to be added an additional $4,100,000,000 that is to liquidate contract authorizations approved by Congress in prior years, for which he needs funds. The total will be $98,500,000,000.

This is the third largest appropriation in American history, being exceeded only by 1943 and 1944 when we were actually at war and spending like mad against time. No one in those years could tell how long the war would last or where we would be hit and therefore we spent our money on the assumption that by that means we would save American lives. It was war budgeting, frankly so accepted.

Then this same administration, which is now asking for so much, demobilized our armed forces, destroyed billions of dollars of usable materials, drove tanks into the ocean, put our fleet in moth balls, sold salvage goods everywhere, left deserted dumps of supplies and now it all is to be started all over again. And, unfortunately for us, it must be done all over again.

Meanwhile, the President wants to use our money to play politics as usual. So the items for social security, welfare and benefits rise in 1952 over 1951 by $100,000,000, although there certainly could be a cut, in view of the fact that we cannot afford luxuries at a time when the people are being taxed beyond their capacity to pay taxes. The Hoover reports are ignored.

Similarly, the President advocates a vast increase in socialist power development, which not only adds to the citizen's tax burdens but takes off the tax roll government-owned corporations. These tax free corporations, owned by the government, are luxuries which we cannot afford.

The most amazing fact about this budget is that it includes a concealed Brannan plan which the President knows that the country and the Congress reject but which turns up constantly like a privately minted bad penny. Nobody has yet been able to estimate the actual cost of the Brannan Plan. To add that on to a war budget is sheer financial madness.

The constitutional responsibility for the budget is in Congress, not in the presidency. Congress cannot dodge this responsibility. It alone has the power of the purse and must stand before the electorate in 1952 to answer for its conduct. The wasteful expenditure of the taxpayers' money is unjustified at any time. It becomes criminal at a time of rising prices, depreciated currency and war expenditures.

Congress has the final word in all this and should speak loud and clear and with a sense of responsibility to the electorate.

One of the tricks developed during the New Deal was to bring noble brass before a congressional committee who solemnly declare that they always need more and more money. To doubt the word or impugn the wisdom of brass is tantamount to treason in the eyes of many. So, we bow our heads and bend our knees and wait for the years to pass when we learn, from the course of events, that what we were told just ain't so. It would be interesting to go over all the congressional hearings since 1939 to compare statements made with the facts as they have disclosed themselves in due course.

Congressional investigations need to be conducted not to confuse the people. For instance, when Senator Connally sent his vulgarly insulting invitation to Herbert Hoover, requesting Mr. Hoover to attend his

And Jesus said unto him, This day is salvation come to this house. . . . For the Son of man is come to seek and to save that which was lost. Luke 19:9-10 (K. J. V.). Read Mark 5:1-6.

Zacchaeus was growing harder by reason of the place to which he had been assigned by the standards of society. But he craved friendship, and he found it in Jesus. He was frowned upon by religionists, and no matter how deeply he may have desired a change, his greatest need was the presence of someone in his life in whose love and friendship he could believe. Jesus supplied that need.

Jesus did not say, "Zacchaeus you are a sinner. I desire to have you turn from sin and follow me." No, as he sat at table with Zacchaeus and they looked into each other's eyes, and felt each other's heart throbs, Zacchaeus began to live in another world.

Jesus made him believe that he belonged in this new world. He began to see what was really important. He saw how petty his life was alongside the sacrificial life of Jesus. Jesus helped him change his mind about values, and when his mind was changed, his world was changed. He began to see life as Jesus saw it.

Let Us Pray: Help us, O Lord, to feel at home in the world that Jesus saw. May we see life steadily and see it whole. Amen.

MIRROR OF YOUR MIND

By LAWRENCE GOULD
Consulting Psychologist

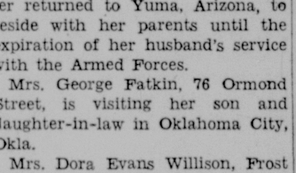

Can a teen-age girl be too good-looking?

Answer: Yes, particularly in her early teens. For the average boy of this age or a little older is very unsure of himself and of his power to attract the opposite sex, and so tends to shy away from a girl who seems to him to be so attractive that she can afford to be "choosy." He is likely to excuse his lack of self-confidence by saying that such girls are "stuck up." An extremely pretty girl of fifteen may find herself without boy friends unless she is careful to appear unconscious of her looks and ready to be friendly.

Are "tics" a neurotic symptom?

Answer: Often, though not always. A recurrent muscular spasm which a person cannot control may unconsciously embody some repressed wish or fear from childhood. In one patient secretly addicted to self-pity a tic of the facial muscles represented the repressed impulse to cry, while a ten-year-old boy whose case is described by Dr. Helen E. Durkin in the Quarterly Journal of Child Development repeatedly shook his head to deny to himself the existence of unconscious repressed hostile feelings towards his father. Both cases were cured by psychoanalytic treatment.

Is it childish to like nonsense?

Answer: Technically yes. But since we all have childish feelings which must find some outlet, it is better for them to take the form of deliberately talking or enjoying nonsense than to express themselves unconsciously in vanity or in irritation over trifles. Nobody can face the sterner aspects of reality continuously and chuckling over Mickey Mouse or Pluto may prevent your cracking under the tension of taking yourself and life too seriously. It is when you do not realize that you are being childish that you are headed for trouble.

The following projects were presented and accepted by the club visiting of other Ruritan clubs during the year, especially in making up attendance; division of club into two groups to compete for higher attendance at meetings; distribution of flower seed at an early date; restoration of Ruritan highway markers; continuation of "Better-Mail-Box" campaign; and conducting a contest on outside home lighting at Christmas, with prizes to be awarded.

Polio Drive May Top $8,000 Mark

The 1951 March of Dimes campaign fund in Allegany County is expected to exceed $8,000, according to Mrs. Vivian L. Annan, executive secretary of the local Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Current incomplete returns for the drive total approximately $7,000 but the final tabulation of proceeds probably will take another week.

J. Milton Dick, president of the Potomac Park Improvement Association which sponsored a square dance for the polio fund, reported last night that more than $208 in admissions alone was realized from the event.

Frostburg contributed $1,800 and the goal for Lonaconing was set at $500. Westernport, Luke and McCoole donated $800 and Barton forwarded $545 to John M. Robb, county director.

Collections at Cumberland theaters amounted to $926, but returns from coin containers are still unavailable since some scattered recepticles are still to be collected.

About $7,000 was netted in last year's polio campaign in comparison to $9,100 collected in 1949. This year's drive was held from January 15-31.

Half of the returns remain in this county and the other half goes to the National Foundation for research and emergency aid wherever needed.

The show will be entitled "Facts, Fancies and Figures" and will be presented at the Maryland Theater on April 17 and 18. It is not necessary to be a member of the Elks to sign up for the show. A larger glee club of men and women is needed this year and more dancing girls can be used.

Skits will include cave men, Mark Anthony and Cleopatra, Christopher and Isabella, Bluebeard and Forever Amber, courtship of Miles Standish, Paul Revere skit, Cinderella, a Hades scene with Mister Devil, and a parody on a Cumberland historical event.

French Sensabaugh will direct the production.

Fire Chief Lindner Retires After 30 Years Of Service

William L. Lindner, after more than 30 years in the blaze-battling profession, has resigned as Cumberland's fire chief.

Lindner was appointed to the position only last month by the mayor and City Council. He was to have served until a chief is appointed through civil service examination sometime in the spring, but illness has forced an early retirement.

Lindner began his career as a fireman July 1, 1920, shortly after returning to civilian life following a tour of Army duty overseas in World War 1.

A pipeman and later a driver, he was promoted to lieutenant with the inauguration of the two-platoon system in 1925. Less than ten years later, he was made captain to succeed Edward R. Connell, who died October 1, 1934. He was promoted to assistant chief May 19, 1947, and served as acting chief during the illness of Chief John E. Brennan, who died last December 10.

Chief Lindner had about a year-and-a-half to go before reaching the compulsory retirement age of 60, although he had planned on serving until his 59th birthday March 26. On that date, Cumberland's paid Fire Department will be 45 years old, having been inaugurated March 26, 1906.

Lindner has watched the department progress through the past 30 years, hailing the purchase of the $32,000 85-foot aerial truck two years ago as an important cog in the city's fire defense.

Known among fellow workers as a fearless fire fighter, Chief Lindner's last big blaze was Christmas night when he directed the attack in a four-alarm fire that swept a Negro tenement on Wineow Street, taking the life of one person and making a score of others homeless. It was Lindner who discovered the body of Chalmers "Cutie" Parnell in the debris.

When Lindner started as a fireman, there were only 21 alarm boxes in the city and three engine companies to offer protection. Now there are four engine companies, a truck company and 86 different locations where an alarm can be turned in.

Lindner helped to battle most of Cumberland's big conflagrations during the past 30 years and lists his most heart-rending experience a Christmas night fire on Williams Street almost a score of years ago when it was impossible to save a mother and her daughter from burning to death.

His most amusing experience came when he rescued a kitten from a burning apartment on North Centre Street. "The meowing cat sounded exactly like a child crying," Lindner said.

Chief Lindner has been cited for his work at fires on a number of occasions, and in 1922, he was commended by George W. Legge, Jr., who later became mayor of Cumberland.

Lindner was driving the truck of Engine Company No. 1 to a potato chip factory blaze on Mechanic Street when he became involved in a "near-collision" with an auto in which Mr. Legge's father, wife and child were riding. Legge's letter of commendation said Lindner avoided hitting the car at the heroic risk of his own life.

Chief Lindner remembers the $250,000 Peskin fire January 26, 1940 and the October 2, 1941 North Centre Street explosion which claimed six lives and injured a score of others, as his biggest jobs.

"We've been lucky on some other fires," Lindner said, recalling a cold Sunday afternoon in February 1940, just a month to the day from the Peskin blaze, when 700 persons made their way to safety after flames broke out in the Liberty Theatre.

Other big fires which he helped to combat were Miller's Warehouse back of Rosenbaum's Store, Bayer's Wholesale Grocery on Commerce Street, Buchanan Lumber Company, Greene Street School, Potomac Glass Company, Box Factory, Zihlman's Glass Factory, East End Hotel, Bennett's Storage Company, Vang Construction Roundhouse, Glisan's Garage and the Liberty Trust Building.

Chief Lindner, who is confined by a heart ailment to his home, 516 Columbia Avenue, served with the 313th Infantry, 79th Division, during the first World War.

Liberty Theatre Gets New Manager

The Liberty Theatre has a new manager, Mack S. Herbert arriving in Cumberland last week to succeed Monroe Kaplan who has gone to Ohio.

Mr. Herbert has had experience in every branch of theatre business. He has been an actor, has served as master of ceremonies, operated a booking unit, staged productions and managed theatres, both movie house and so-called "legitimate" theatres. All his 30 years in the business has been in New York except for a brief interlude in Hartford, Conn.

with a very fishy eye at certain business practices. Almost five billion defense dollars, according to Economic Stabilizer Eris Johnson, have already gone down the drain because of higher prices charged to the Defense Department. This cannot possibly be accounted for wholly in terms of higher costs. For many defense items, the Defense Department has in effect been subject to a sort of polite holdup. Many businesses are refusing to bid on defense orders, simply because the civilian market is more lucrative.

Wilson is determined to deal with this sort of thing. Moreover, he is convinced that in many cases amortization rates are much too high, in effect permitting industry to build new plants at the expense of the taxpayer, and he intends to deal with this matter also. Thus a third Wilson battle, this time with business, is also in prospect.

No nation can embark on a great rearmament program and maintain its standard of living absolutely intact. Yet the tragedy of the present situation is that Wilson and his advisers are deeply convinced that only a little self-denial will get the national economy back on an even keel in only about a year and a half. This country's fabulous productive capacity will then make it possible to carry the double load of civilian demand and a great defense effort. Yet if labor, agriculture and business continue to "act like pigs," while the government follows an inflationary money policy, the end may well be real disaster. At least the country is fortunate in a mobilization chief, who, although he can certainly make mistakes, consults the national interest first and foremost, and is not afraid of a fight.

Odd Fellows Plan Special Events

Chapel Hill Lodge No. 53, I. O. O. F., will meet at Odd Fellows Hall, Virginia Avenue, today at 7 p. m. instead of the usual hour of 7:30.

At the regular election in December none of the candidates for this office obtained a majority, necessitating a special election for this office. Only past grands of the lodges are eligible to vote.

Memorial Staff Honors Nurse

Miss Carrie Harden, RN., acting superintendent of nurses at Memorial Hospital, was honored Saturday by the hospital staff at a dinner at Cumberland Country Club.

When Memorial Hospital opened she continued her duties as supervisor and later assistant director of nurses.

Mr. and Mrs. John Moberly were guests. Mr. Moberly, who is superintendent of the hospital, paid tribute to Miss Harden's years of service.

Association Adds Seven Members

Seven new members have been signed up by the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association and there are vacancies for about 10 more dairy men, according to officials of the group.

New members of the association are R. E. Carskadon, of Headsville, W. Va.; Olin B. Flatt, Greenspding, W. Va.; Marshall Porter, of Frostburg; Paul E. Greise, Route 3, city; C. A. Liller, of Cresaptown; Harry T. Duckworth, of Route 3, Keyser, W. Va.; and George M. Barton, of Route 3, Keyser.

We are in a state of Emergency.

We must build our military strength—and, at the same time, we must keep our economy strong for the long pull. Inflation bleeds both!

How to pay for tanks and guns — and still hold the line on Inflation

No American begrudges one dollar necessary for defense but nobody wants to spend a single cent unnecessarily.

Congress has the responsibility of reducing non-defense spending as much as possible. What is left will still be a big enough burden for all of us.

There are two ways we can pay for defense while holding the line against Inflation.

The first way, which President Truman has endorsed, is to go on a "pay-as-you-go" basis. Under this plan the Government takes more from everybody in taxes to balance its income with its spending. Every individual then, has less to spend. This stops some of the demand for scarce civilian goods and helps make what is available go around.

To make "pay-as-you-go" work, and to keep the Federal debt from going higher, all individuals and businesses will face higher Federal income taxes as well as other taxes which both add to the Government's income and discourage individual spending. This calls for tough decisions and sacrifices.

The second and less desirable way is for the Government to pay for part of its spending by borrowing. The least inflationary way to borrow is from the people. This is done by selling bonds to individuals or to investing institutions. By this method people save, instead of spending for scarce goods, and this helps reduce the demand for these goods. Borrowing, however, means increased taxes now as well as later to pay this debt.

5 more things that must be done to check Inflation — even with price controls

1. Increase production: To meet defense needs and provide civilian necessities.
2. Maintain credit curbs: To reduce the competition for civilian goods.
3. Increase personal savings: To provide investment money for greater production and to lessen the demand for goods.
4. Buy only for real needs: Overbuying only increases shortages, and adds to the inflationary pressures.
5. Cut non-military expenditures: To provide money for vital military needs and to hold down tax increases and borrowing.

These things won't be easy for any of us to do. We must also forego increased wages and profits unless they are the result of increased production. But everybody will agree it's worth sacrificing to prevent the Sixth Column Enemy—INFLATION—from bleeding our economy.

Light Heavies Get Garden Go

Murphy, Matthews Tangle On Friday

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (AP) — Irish Bobby Murphy and Harry Matthews, a couple of West Coast light heavies with terrific knockout records, clash Friday night with a possible title shot at stake. The ten rounder will be held in Madison Square Garden.

Matthews, of Seattle, Wash., is ranked as the No. 2 contender to light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim. Murphy, the red-topped sailor from San Diego, is ranked third. Old Archie Moore is the No. 1 challenger who has probably despaired by now of ever getting a 175-pound king in the ring with him.

Murphy, who has hung up 13 straight knockout victories since being flattened by Clarence Henry a year ago, has gained a huge following in these parts with his sensational style. Matthews, undefeated in his last 52 fights, will be making his New York debut. Almost all of his wins have been scored on the West Coast.

Both are ex-servicemen. Both are 28, and both have outstanding records.

The 10 p.m. (EST) bout will be broadcast by ABC and telecast by NBC.

Put Boy Together Right, World Will Take Care Of Itself, Herman Ball Says

Michelosen, Dudley Among 25 Notables At Dapper Dan Banquet

By JOHN W. KNOWLTON

"If you put the boy together right the world will take care of itself."

That was the keynote of Coach Herman Ball's address at the third annual Dapper Dan banquet last night at the Knights of Columbus Hall.

A charitable organization, the local Dapper Dan club donated all proceeds of last night's affair at which more than 350 persons attended to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children.

Sport Notables Speak

Ball was one of more than 25 sports notables who attended the dinner and spoke briefly including John Michelosen, head coach of the Pittsburgh Steelers.

Praising the work of the Dapper Dan organization as a whole and the local club particularly, Ball commented that a good slogan for the charity group to follow would be that of the East-West Shrine football game which says "We play so that they may walk."

Telling the story of a little boy who was given the job of putting a map of the world together after his father had torn it up to keep the youth occupied, Ball related how the boy completed the task within a few minutes. When his father asked him how he did it the boy replied "There was a picture of a crippled boy on the back of the map, Dad, and I just turned it over and put the boy together."

Noting that the "nation ignores its youth too much," Ball related that putting the boy together correctly would enable the future world to take care of itself.

Dudley Among Visitors

Among the out-of-town notables who attended the huge affair were Robert Davis, defensive end of Pittsburgh Steelers; Bill Dudley, All-America product from the University of Virginia, now of the Washington Redskins and formerly with the Steelers and Detroit Lions; John Rokisky, ex-Duquesne University All-America end and formerly of the Cleveland Browns, Chicago Rockets and New York Yankees; Harry Dowda, Washington Redskins' halfback; Bill McPeak, of the Steelers; Ernie Sesto, well known Pittsburgh boxing referee, and Al Abrams, sports editor of the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and national president of the Dapper Dans.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 25 (AP)—Tall Marty Furgol had his iron shots and putter under fine control today while winning his first major golf championship and $2,000 in first prize money in the Houston Open.

The 33-year-old Long Beach, Calif., pro turned in a three-under par 69 for a 72-hole 277 on the 6967-yard Memorial Park course.

Burke's $1,400 shot him to second place at $4,116 among the top money winners of the winter tournament circuit.

Furgol was even par through the first seven holes but started moving when he connected for a 30-foot chip shot that gained a two-under 3 on the 491-yard eighth.

He lost a stroke on the ninth green but came back on the backside with one-under putts at 8, 40 and 12 feet.

It was decided that all schools not having a representative present at conference meetings be fined according to the constitution.

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 25 (INS)—Harpo Marx, who has never spoken a word on the screen, is about to put his name on a contract for a motion picture in which, as usual he'll utter nary a word.

Harpo Marx

The story is "The Man Who Voted No," one of the all-time hilarious satires on Communism. The author, Adele Comandini, tells about a village idiot and deaf mute in the iron curtain countries who votes against Uncle Joe Stalin's regime. But the idiot is so loved by the people that the Communists do not dare touch him.

Final details are being completed for Gilbert Goldsmith Rothschild, son of Baroness Rothschild, to make the picture in Paris.

The always unpredictable Shelley Winters and Farley Granger are planning to take a four months' trip to Europe together this summer. If this isn't their honeymoon, which it seems likely it will be, Shelley's aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Ben. Schrift of New York, will act as chaperones.

After Shelley finishes "Fiddler's Green" for Universal-International, and "Behave Yourself" with Farley for RKO, she will have four unreleased pictures. When Farley completes "I Want You" and "Behave Yourself" he will have two movies all made.

He left an automobile in Paris when he was abroad last year and he and Shelley will motor through Europe. They hope to leave about June 1.

Chatter in Hollywood:

Rumor hounds, who hinted at trouble between the John Waynes because she remained in Mexico City so long, may now get indigestion eating their words. Friday Mrs. Wayne flew from Mexico City to join John in New York for a few days before he leaves for Europe with Herbert Yates.

She returns to the sanitorium near Mexico City where she has been undergoing treatment for a nervous condition which affects her skin. One of Mexico's most famous skin specialists is flying back from South America to treat Mrs. Wayne.

June Havoc takes over for Celeste Holm when Celeste leaves "Affairs Of State" on June 1—and June was an excited girl when she called long distance to tell me the good news. I don't blame her. It's a great break and I'm sure she will do a good job.

Her contract calls for "run of the play" on Broadway which means June will be east for a long time.

Luckily, Bill Spier's radio directing work permits him to be with her in New York and they are looking for an apartment now. There's one gal who loves her man and doesn't believe in being separated from him for any reason.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis will marry later this year. Tony says that somebody is spreading gossip that they are having trouble, but it will take more than that to kill a real romance, and Janet agrees with him.

Dr. Peter Lindstrom has just bought a new house for $40,000. It's located in fashionable Beverly Hills in Benedict Canyon. Each time the doctor looked at the house he was accompanied by an attractive young woman.

Liz Taylor will celebrate her 19th birthday Tuesday and she'll be in Washington, D. C. Bets are down that Stanley Donen will fly there to celebrate with her.

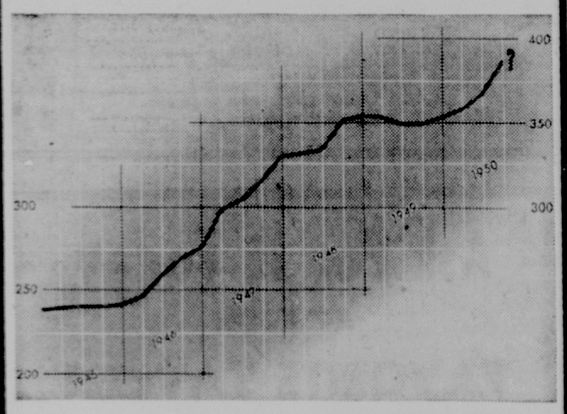

Kathryn Grayson and Johnny Johnston have reached an amicable financial agreement and Katie will file for divorce in Santa Monica in about a week.

Barbara Stanwyck has closed a deal for the purchase of a house in Beverly Glen. Everyone is glad that Barbara is being seen again. She was with Jack Benny at Mocambo (with Mary's permission), and the next night she went to a preview of "Ace In The Hole" with 150 other guests.

Cesar Romero is being seen constantly with Beverly Stoner. She was formerly Bob Sterling's fiancee. Thursday night they were at the Tallyho at a table for two.

NOW'S the time to have that engine inspected! Rough winter weather has taken its toll on vital parts, and may have started "little" troubles in the engine system that can be found now, and corrected at low cost. Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

Fifty-Three Minutes

ON THE last of Jimmy Durante's perfectly wonderful television shows, there was an interval of comic pantomime by a couple of zanies whose names I didn't catch. It lasted, according to the temperamental mechanism on my wrist, three and a half minutes. Later a Spanish dancer leapt about for a period of a minute and a half; a chorus line displayed legs (very pretty ones) for 30 seconds; and the Pet Milk Company succeeded with considerable difficulty in interjecting its name into the proceedings for the space of one minute.

John Crosby

The rest of the hour, a total of 53 and a half minutes, was taken over by James Durante, clowning, singing, scratching his head, trying on hats, duelling with Don Ameche, ogling a Motorola, pinching the girls and playing the piano. It was one hell of an exhibition of virtuosity and, as far as the listener is concerned, a very delightful one. But how long can the great man take the punishment? He blew his lines only twice, a matter of no great moment in his case. For so severe a course, that's way under par.

• — • — •

Seems to me that the smash hits of television—Mr. Berle, Mr. Durante, to name only two—have been one-man affairs. The scenery, the exhibition of female bodies, the singers, the dog acts have been simply devices to give the stars a chance to change their clothes and mop their brows. NBC has been very lucky in finding a couple of distance men who can go a mile and a quarter. But I don't know where they're going to find any more. We're going to have to breed a new-type comedian for television. Man who can sing, dance, act, memorize 60 pages of dialogue a week, has a 1,000-watt personality and needs the money. There's the rub—the money. The entertainers who have all those qualifications are already intolerably rich and famous. Television hasn't much to offer them except headaches.

Since Mr. Durante has been scrutinized pretty thoroughly in this column before, I'll pause for only one other observation before hurrying along to other matters. There was a sketch on the show concerning a CBS man trying to lure Durante to that other network. Well, bless my soul, I can recall way, way back—oh, all of four years—when the mention of CBS on an NBC show was about as blasphemous as taking the Lord's name in vain.

If it was mentioned at all, it was by euphemism—"that place on Madison Avenue"—like sex, CBS was a dirty word. William S. Paley's name was bandied around, too, which just goes to show how far we have progressed in the last four years. In that time, the Paley name has become recognized joke material like Hollywood smog, Bob Hope's nose, Bing Crosby's derriere and the Kinsey report. Better than the Kinsey report, as a matter of fact. The Kinsey report is just a smirk. Paley is a yok.

• — • — •

To pass on to other matters, two of the most celebrated voices of our time were united in an unholy alliance the other night on the radio. The two: Bing Crosby and Tallulah Bankhead. (Spent a sleepless night, wondering whom to give top billing in this paragraph. It was settled by the toss of a coin.) This union, this rich mixture of vibrant timbers, is the greatest test my radio ever passed. After all, a radio tube can take only so much, and the combined voltage of Miss Bankhead and Mr. Crosby (you're all even now, kids) is something Lee de Forest hadn't considered when he invented the darn thing. My radio shuddered a bit. Probably shortened its life span. But it came through.

The rest of the show was a spirited contest between two experts. In the matter of insult, Mr. C., I think, had the better of it. "(Tallulah's singing voice) sounds a little like the mating call of a tone-deaf moose." "You're the only woman I know who can say 'revolting' for 16 bars." They matched laughter, too—Tallulah's strident guffaw against Bing's resonant chuckle—and here I think Tallulah won the honors. It would take Fred Waring's glee club to drown out that laugh of Tallulah's.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

In loving memory of my Mother, Annie O'Donnell, who passed away 7 years ago today, Feb. 26, 1944.
No one knows how much I miss you,
No one knows the biter pain
I have suffered; since I lost you
Life has never been the same.
In my heart your memory lingers
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear Mother,
That I do not think of you.
Your Daughter, Ruth Durkin

In memory of Marjorie Dale Byrne, who died February 26, 1944.
Seven sad years have passed, Marjorie

We know you are with Jesus
Safe in His love.

In general, it would mean annual boosts of from $700 to $900, depending upon rank and based on weekly pay rather than monthly since members would gain four weeks pay through bi-weekly instead of monthly pay checks.

HB358 would change annual paid vacation of police and firemen from the present 15 days to 21 days and would allow members to accumulate unused sick leave from the present 60 days to 90 days. No change is made in the 15 days a year sick leave allowance.

Va. Police Probe Cross Burnings

MANAKIN, Va., Feb. 25 (AP) — A six-foot cross was burned in front of a negro family's home here late last night, and authorities said it was the third such incident in this area within a week.

In all three cases — two in this Goochland County community and the third in the western section of adjoining Henrico County — the crosses were burned in front of the homes of negro tavern owners.

Police said they were unable to give any reason for the burnings. They added that shots were fired from an automobile which left the scene of at least two of the cross-burnings.

The cross last night burned in front of the home of John B. Pittman, owner of a small tavern about 11 miles west of Richmond. Pittman told authorities he heard a commotion in front of his home and saw the cross blazing when he went to the front door.

Five or six white men were running from the cross, Pittman said. The men jumped in a car parked nearby, one of them fired a pistol into the air five times, and the car then drove away, he told authorities.

Concerning water development, the report said navigation in the tidewater sections is the single adequately developed potential.

Power Is Unused

"The hydroelectric power potential of the basin is almost completely unused at present," it said.

"Floods generally are uncontrolled; protection has been provided only at some very critical damage points.

"Conservation storage is practically nonexistent.

"Pollution damages the fishery resources and adds to the cost of water supply and navigation maintenance . . .

"On the whole, the large potentialities of the basin for serving human needs generally are being allowed to go unused."

The commission recalled that a series of 11 reservoirs were authorized for preliminary examination in 1944 but reported on unfavorably by Army Engineers because of local opposition.

Such reservoirs, the report added, would give flood protection to Washington, and upstream communities, would yield power, would abate pollution, especially for Washington and the industrial areas along the North Branch between Luke and Cumberland, Md., and would benefit the fisheries in the tidal reach of the river.

Taft Hits Waste In Armed Forces

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—Sen. Taft (R-Ohio) said today he thinks the armed forces are "unduly wasteful."

"Somebody ought to make a thorough examination," he said, "and see if we can't get the same results with less money."

In time of war, Taft said, it's not possible to check on the armed services. But now, he said, a study should be made of their spending.

Taft appeared on the University of Chicago Round Table radio program. The subject up for discussion: "Inflation And Price Control."

Taft listed four steps he thinks should be taken:

1. Check on the spending by the armed forces.
2. Try to step up production.
3. Prevent inflation, by limited credits, balancing the government budget, levying "necessary" taxes. "I think we can levy to high taxes, though," he said. One good rule on credits, Taft said, is: "Don't spend what you don't have."
4. Carry on the program in "such a way as to always look forward to a return to a normal economy."

Five Children Injured When Plane Crashes Into Play Platform

CLARK TOWNSHIP, N. J., Feb. 25 (AP)—A small plane swooped into a raised play platform today, showering a nearby group of frightened children with wooden debris.

Seven boys and girls were treated for cuts, bruises and contusions and remained at their homes.

Police said the plane, which was taking off from the Westfield airport, was about 50 feet in the air when it suddenly dropped. Its left wing hit the play platform near a group of homes in a development on Ridge Road, police said.

The top of the play platform was sheared off. None of the children were on the flatform at the time.

Police said the pilot, Fred Bross, 26, Cranford, told them he swerved the plane to avoid hitting the houses. Bross and a student pilot, Alfred Sanderson, 29, Metuchen, were unhurt.

Vindex Miner Fatally Hurt In Auto Crash

Four Others Hurt When Car Hits Pole

A Vindex man was fatally injured and four other persons were hurt, two seriously, when the automobile in which they were riding crashed into a telephone power line pole near Swanton Saturday night.

The driver of the vehicle, Thomas Whitacre, 21, is being held in Garrett County jail, Oakland, pending further investigation of the accident by the state's attorney and the sheriff's office, authorities said.

William Franklin Stewart, 32, died yesterday at 2:30 a. m. in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, where he had been admitted suffering from a fractured skull.

Badly injured, according to Dr. E. I. Baumgartner, Garrett County coroner, who investigated the mishap, were the dead man's wife, Mrs. Wanda Harvey Stewart, 22, who suffered possible chest injuries, and Leo Tasker, 15, who had a compound fracture of the right femur bone, a simple fracture below the knee of the right leg and a broken left wrist. Both were taken to a Morgantown, W. Va., hospital.

Driver Questioned

Also hurt in the wreck were the driver of the 1941 Plymouth sedan and Betty Lou Michaels, 15, both of whom had minor bruises and abrasions. They were treated at the Oakland hospital and released. Trooper Robert Henline, Maryland State Police, reported. All the car's occupants were from Vindex, the officer stated.

State's Attorney Dwight Stover said yesterday Whitacre has been questioned and will be held in the county jail pending further investigation of his office.

Henline said the accident occurred about 8:30 p. m. Saturday on Maryland Route No. 135 as the car was traveling east toward Swanton when Whitacre apparently lost control of the wheel and the vehicle smashed into the power pole, shearing it off at the base. The car then careened several yards away Henline noted.

The Michaels girl was riding in the front seat with Whitacre and the other three passengers were in the back seat Henline said.

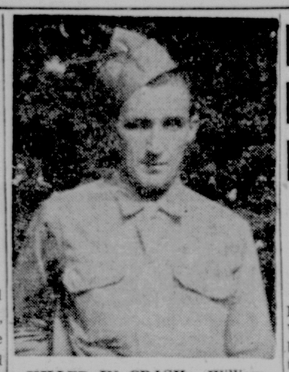

Enroute To Westernport

According to the driver, Henline related, the group had left Vindex and were on their way to Westernport when the mishap occurred.

Stewart, a coal miner employed near Morgantown, was a native of Vindex and the son of Mrs. Ada Trout Stewart and the late Jesse Francis Stewart. He was a veteran of World War II and served three years overseas. He belonged to the United Mine Workers of America.

Surviving besides his mother and widow are two brothers, Marshall, Kitzmiller, and Albert, Vindex; three sisters, Mrs. Riley Evans, Kitzmiller, Mrs. William A. Tasker, Vindex, and Mrs. Oliver Dixon, Masontown, W. Va.

The body will be taken to the home of his mother, in Vindex, today.

KILLED IN CRASH — William Franklin Stewart, 32, Vindex coal miner, died of injuries received in an automobile wreck near Swanton Saturday night. The World War II veteran suffered a fractured skull and succumbed in Garrett County Memorial Hospital, Oakland, several hours after the mishap.

Heart Program Endangered As Campaign Lags

Final Effort For $7,000 Goal Starts

The campaign for funds to operate the local Heart Clinic and continue the program of home nursing and training for victims of rheumatic fever is continuing here, but the campaign committee reports that the $7,000 goal is not yet in sight.

Dr. Samuel Jacobson, president of the Allegany County Rheumatic Fever and Heart Association, said last night that a final effort is to be made this week to reach the local quota. Persons desiring to contribute can mail their subscriptions to Heart Fund, Cumberland, Md.

Important Program

The importance of continuing the clinic and home nursing program is brought out forcefully in a recent report from a study made by a nationally known life insurance company. The report emphasizes the need for proper counsel from physicians and training by home nurses.

The study which traced survivorship among 3,000 patients at ages 1 to 20 shows 7 out of 8 to be still living at least 10 years later. The patients received nursing care from the company between 1936 and 1938.

Indications are that most of the survivors are leading quite normal lives. Those reaching adult life are working, and many have married. A large proportion of the girls in the group have become mothers, and not a few have borne several children.

A large number of the older boys were in military service during World War II. Many of them were in combat units and five were killed in action.

Among the children with no evident heart damage during the acute episode for which they were nursed, survivorship after 10 years was at the rate of 92 percent, and even among those with evidence of heart damage it was at the rate of 71 percent. The record for the girls was somewhat better than for the boys.

Many Can Recover

The study, based almost entirely on the experience of children in wage earning families, shows that the prospect of virtually complete recovery from rheumatic fever is good in a great many cases. Moreover, the prospect has been greatly improved by recent advances in treatment, proper care and training.

"On the other hand, the investigation shows clearly the serious effect of significant heart damage sustained during the attack," the statisticians declare. "This emphasizes the importance of early detection and of good medical and nursing care of children with rheumatic fever."

Normal living and normal lives can be restored to more than a hundred rheumatic fever cases in this county, if the program of the Heart Association here can be continued, Dr. Jacobson emphasized.

Home Rule Bill, Pay Raises Set For Hearings

Delegation To Visit Annapolis Wednesday

A large delegation from Cumberland is expected to go to Annapolis Wednesday to attend hearings on bills providing for home rule for this city and for wage increases and improved vacations and sick leave for city firemen and policemen.

The House Judiciary committee will hold a hearing on the home rule bill Wednesday at 3 p. m.

The legislation was introduced by the Allegany County Delegation at the request of the Mayor and Council.

The bill provides for the election of an 11 member committee to draw up the charter, which would then be submitted to the voters in a referendum.

It would give the city the power to make its own laws, subject to the constitutional and general laws of the state.

Decline Comment

Members of the delegation have generally declined comment on the home rule except to say that it would deprive citizens of the right to appeal to the Legislature.

At 7:30 p. m. Wednesday, members of the Delegation will hear proponents and opponents of the city police and firemen's legislation.

The bills, sponsored by Delegates Driscoll, Kelley, See and Reed, by request, are HB 357, HB 358 and HB 359.

The first, relating to wage increases for city firemen, changes the rate of fire chief to $80 a week; assistant fire chief, $75 a week; fire captain, $72.50; fire lieutenant, $70; drivers, $67.50; privates, $65, and probationers, $57 a week.

It adds $740 to the yearly rate of privates, or pipemen, who now get $220 a month, upping some ratings to the $900 mark.

Police Pay Raise

HB359, calling for increases to members of the Police Department, provides an $80 a week salary for the police chief; $75 for the assistant chief; $72.50 for lieutenants; $70 for sergeants; $68.50 for the de-

Today's Sermonette

On the following day, when they came from Bethany, he was hungry. And seeing in the distance a fig tree in leaf, he went to see if he could find anything on it. When he came to it, he found nothing but leaves. Mark 11:12-14

By REV. W. RANDOLPH KEEFE

Today's sermonette is a digest of the sermon preached yesterday morning at Grace Baptist Church by the pastor, Rev. W. Randolph Keefe. The sermon digests are being prepared through the cooperation of the Cumberland Ministerial Association.

"LEAVES ONLY"

ON THE Sunday before Jesus went out from Jerusalem to Bethany there was the singing of hosannas. In the city they had received Him with a royal welcome. He entered amid the lofty praise of the people. "Hosanna in the highest," they cried, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord." Loud were their acclamations. Before that day was over Jesus was driving out of the temple those whose worship was so lacking in sincerity that they had made of God's house a place of merchandise and a den of thieves.

Rev. Keefe

At eventide he went out unto Bethany with the twelve. Jesus was in need of rest and fellowship. Great is our need in these days for the same. When we are too busy to take time for meditation and communion with God we are far too busy. Often we are busy commercializing the Lord's house. Jesus wants us to make it a house of prayer. We busy ourselves making it a place of merchandise with our church suppers, rummage sales, etc. We have the appearance of being active in the Lord's work when our activity is bearing no spiritual fruit.

The church has something to offer the community which no other institution or organization can offer. We who are members of the church are responsible for the giving of spiritual food to those among whom we live. God forbid that we be satisfied with that which is secondary. To let any other activity be substituted for this vital food is to be like the fig tree that bore leaves only.

Jesus cast out of the temple those that were thieves and robbers. We too are fit only to be cast out if we rob our community of that spiritual food so greatly needed. The life of our nation and the nations of the earth depend upon the spiritual fruit which is our sacred responsibility to bear.

When the five thousand were without food Jesus said, "Give ye them to eat." When the fig tree was full of leaves, and yet gave no fruit to him who came seeking food, Jesus cursed it. If we rob men of that fruit which we can offer, then we deserve the treatment Jesus meted out to the thieves in the temple; perhaps even the curse which He pronounced on the fig tree that bore leaves only.

Will you during these days when many are dedicating themselves unto the Lord make His house a house of prayer among all the nations? This is no time to be a leafy Christian. There is no room in His church for sham or pretense; no time for secondary service. Let us cleanse our hearts and our temples and bear fruit.

People Share Blame For Slow Reclamation In Potomac Basin

Report Lists 13 Problems Which Must Be Met In Developing Area To Top Position

By FRANK TAYLOR
AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP) — The people themselves are blamed in part by a study commission for slow development of the Potomac River Basin.

This basin could be developed to rank with the best of the world's river areas, the staff of the President's Water Resources Policy Commission said in a report made public today.

But, the report said, "The Potomac River was found to have one of the most serious pollution problems of all the basins studied."

A big obstacle to development of the Potomac, the report added, is conflict in views among the residents of the basin lying in Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

"Among 10 of the basins studied by the commission," the report said, "the Potomac is the only one in which an important beneficial program has been refused because of conflicts in point of view among residents of the basin as to the purpose and form of development.

"Nowhere in the country is the weighing of special interest against general welfare, or the balancing of regional and local desires against national benefits, more difficult.

Appraisal Needed

"Nowhere is an understanding appraisal of the intangibles in resource development more clearly needed."

To develop the Potomac area to a top position, the report added, there must be "proper land management, flood control, wise drainage practices, improved water supplies, pollution abatement, development of the hydro electric power resources, navigation, fish and wildlife conservation, full economic use of mineral resources, and use of the manifold recreation possibilities."

With such gains the Potomac Basin "should achieve a position of eminence among basins in this country or abroad," the report added.

"This would be an achievement worthy of its position as the seat of (federal) government.

"It would be a model for comparable programs elsewhere in the nation."

Lists 13 Problems

The staff said 13 problems "are worthy of consideration in appraising the present Potomac Basin situation."

It divided these into four groups and listed them as follows:

A—protection of basic resources.

1—need for land treatment programs in a comprehensive plan for water use.

2—need for pollution control (except mine wastes.)

3—need for control of acid mine wastes.

4—need and responsibility to maintain and enhance fish and wildlife in water resources development.

5—need for stream flow regulation.

B—apparent conflicts in beneficial use.

1—conflict between plans for storage reservoirs and interest of local groups in preventing land flooding.

2 Brothers Shot To Death During Family Quarrel

3 Others Hurt In Cherry Grove Fight

FRANKLIN, W. Va., Feb. 25 (AP)—Two elderly brothers were slain before the eyes of their 85-year-old mother yesterday when a smouldering intra-family mountain quarrel erupted into gunplay.

Three other persons, including a third brother, were wounded in the shooting at nearby Cherry Grove, in eastern West Virginia.

State Trooper R. E. Schnell said today murder charges have been placed against the surviving brother, Jesse Vandevander, about 62.

The officer said Vandevander, lying critically wounded in a hospital at Harrisonburg, Va., admitted doing all the shooting. He and his wife lived next door to the home of his aged mother.

Tells Of Quarrel

State Police said Vandevander complained from his hospital bed that the others had been "picking on him" for a long time, and that he "lost his head and started shooting at them."

Schnell identified the victims as: Jacob Vandevander, about 61, and Wayne S. Vandevander, about 60, both shot to death.

Virgil Vandevander, 25-year-old nephew of Jess, in serious condition with shotgun wounds in the lung and leg.

Betty Alice Bennett, 50, wounded in the leg.

Hospital authorities at Rockingham Memorial Hospital in Harrisonburg said today that Jesse and Virgil Vandevander are still in serious condition.

Earlier, attendants said Jesse probably would not survive the two rifle wounds in his chest.

Violent Episode

After questioning several other members of the Vandevander family, Trooper R. E. West said he had pieced together this account of the violent episode:

A long string of family troubles resulted in the serving of a peace warrant on Jess Vandevander, who lived next door to his mother.

Suddenly Jess pointed a .25-.35 calibre shotgun through his window and started firing at the group next door. After five or six blasts from the shotgun had felled his two brothers, nephew and the Bennett woman, Jess emerged from his house with a .33 calibre rifle.

He placed the muzzle against his chest and pulled the trigger. The shot drove him back a couple of feet. He reloaded, fired again, and collapsed.

West said he was summoned by Mrs. Darie Arbaugh, Wayne Vandevander's daughter.

Sunday drivers were out in full force yesterday to take advantage of the near spring weather. Although the temperature did not rise above 62 in the city, the combination of sunny skies with little or no wind, and the smell of spring in the air, combined to make it one of the nicest days of the year. At Constitution Park, the thermometer registered a high of 57 and a low of 33 and was 50 at 8 p. m. Today promises to be almost as nice, with cloudy but mild weather promised.

Class Completes Red Cross Special Home Nurse Course

Cumberland is already well on its way toward "Mobilizing for Defense" Allegany County Chapter Red Cross officials said in announcing 12 women have completed a special home nursing instructor course at Allegany Hospital.

Miss Sena Anderson, R. N., training instructor of Red Cross Eastern Area, with headquarters at Alexandria, Va., was instructor of the local groups.

These 12 women are thoroughly trained to give emergency care to atomic casualties after studying new material prepared in cooperation with the national civil defense administration. This training emphasized the importance of the order in which large numbers of casualties may be treated: severe hemorrhage, asphyxia or serious breathing difficulty, and deep shock requiring immediate life-saving attention.

All the training the women have received in their 30-hour course emphasizes the importance of self-help in the confusion likely to follow any large scale attack. These women are now qualified to instruct other classes and plans are underway to start a training program in Allegany County under their direction. They will help fill the gap caused by the draining of large numbers of professional, medical and nursing people to disaster areas and they can be used to prepare local families against the dangers of infection, exposure, communicable diseases, and other by-products of large-scale attack. The care of evacuees will also come under their jurisdiction.

Miss Anderson is a graduate of St. Mary's Hospital, Rochester, Minn., served in Mayo Clinic, and is a graduate of State Teachers College, Oshkosh, Wis. She received her B. S. degree from Columbia University, N. Y.

Graduates of the local course are Mrs. Mary A. Bartlett, Potomac Park; Mrs. Greta Beeman, 407 Decatur Street; Mrs. Harriet Jean Boore, 43 Marion Street; Miss Joan Broeseker, 901 Louisiana Avenue; Mrs. Lona Daum, 704 Brookfield Avenue; Miss Betty Cecelia Engle, 289 E. Main Street, Frostburg; Miss Dottie Rae Kerr, 901 Louisiana Avenue; Miss Evelyn Kinsinger, 704 Montgomery Avenue; Mrs. Claire McGibbon, 21 Valley Street; Mrs. Vivienne Paugh, 16 Paw Paw Way; Miss Thelma Seifarth, 347 Williams Street; and Mrs. Jean Finley, Route 1. All are graduate nurses except Mrs. Daum.
